TRAIN HELD UP

Sensational Robbery on the Santa Fe Pacific.

West-bound Passenger Express Looted and Wrecked.

Safe Blown Up with Dynamite and Fireman Killed.

Burned-Fate of Passengers as Yet Unknown-Dastardly Crime Near Grant's Station.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORTAL ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.,) Nov. 6 .-The boldest and apparently the most successful hold-up in the history of the Santa Fé Pacific Railroad occurred tonight at about 9 o'clock near Grant's Station.

The regular passenger train reached Grant's about thirty minutes late, and consisted of mail, baggage car, an express car, a day coach, a chair car and two sleepers. On going to the water tank at a siding two miles east of Grant's, known as Saints, the train was taken possession of by the bandits, the party being supposed to consist of four men, as no more than that number were seen.

After securing the train, one of the men took the engine and another member of the party cut the train in two just ahead of the day coach, and the engine and the attached cars were taken half a mile farther east. At the point where the express car was cut off the messenger was ordered out of the car and none but the robbers went

As soon as the train was cut. Conductor Aldrich walked to Grant's Station and sent a message to Sheriff Hubbell of this county, saying "Train No. 2 held up at Grant's. Robbers have taken possession of train and run east about a mile and a half. They were blowing up the safe in the express car just as I started to walk back to the station. They had no horses, but it is likely they had horses near where they stopped the train."

About the same time a message was received from Division Superintendent Hibbard at Gallup, saying: "Our No. 2 held up at Grant's. Can't say result of the robbery, but express has been blown up and operator at Grant's thinks it is being burned, as he sees fire in the direction of the train. Please send posse to pursue robbers. In response to these messages train No. 1 from the east was taken by Sheriff Hubbell and Deputy Fornoff. who are now on their way to the

A later message says that after the robbers had blown up the safe in the express car and looted it, the engine nd cars were abandoned and ran back into the cars left standing on the rack. It is presumed that they wantonly reversed the engine and sent it The baggage in the baggage car was all taken out before the fire reached it. There has as yet been no word received that would indicate any loss of life or bodily injury, but the question will be in doubt until some one arrives from the scene. A later report reaches here of a rumor that when Engineer Henry Mc-Carty was ordered from his engine. Fireman Henry Abel was taken on ahead by the robbers, and was killed by the explosion when they blew up the safe. No train will reach here before 3 o'clock.

Court Decision Gives Then a Gain of One and There Wi Be No Further Contests Defective Re-turns Make Trouble in Mary-

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] COLUMBUS (O.,) Nov. 6 .- The only important development in the status of the new General Assembly today was the decision in the Wood county case, which once more removes that county from the doubtful list to the Republican column. The court instructed the elec-tion supervisors of Wood county to canvass the returns from the disputed precincts, which gives the election to Capt. O. P. Norris, the Republican can-didate for Representative by 31 plurality. This news was received by Chairman Nash of the Republican State Committee with evident satisfaction, though it was not different from what he had expected. The decision had a significance which could no be expressed, inasmuch as it put an end to the talk of other contests on the same ground. Chairman Nash does not believe the case will be appealed by the Democrats, since the law in the case is plain.

There was some talk of an injunc-

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
COLUMBUS (O.,) Nov. 6.—The contest for control of the Ohio Legislature is considered ended today. It is stated that other arrests will be made during the day. It is also said that naturalization papers were furnished signers for $17 apiece and that quite a number had been issued.

Spain, it is explained by her representatives here, hardly expected to capture the leaders by their new conciliatory tactics. She hopes so to reduce the rank and file by amnesty and reform proclamations as to make the task of subduing those who hope for independence comparatively easy. "While by no means certain that Spain will be successful, there is no disposition on the part of the administration, to prevent a fair test of her new plans.

This matter, however, was not discussed at the Cabinet meeting, but I understand there are in course of preparation instructions to Minister Woodford which will convince Spain that this government has left nothing undone to preserve the strictest neutrality.

"Gen Lee's instructions are no different from those he has heretofore had. He will secure from Gen. CUBAN, MANIFESTO, Nothing Short of Absolute Independence Can Stop the War.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 .- The Herald publishes a Cuban manifesto which is regarded as the most important docu-ment ever issued by the Cubans. The manifesto will be submitted to Cuban colonies and Cuban groups all over the world for signatures. It is as follows: "Nearly three years have elapsed since the iniquities and corruptions of the Spanish administrative policy impelled the people of Cuba to launch themselves into a desperate war that has been the wonder of the world. From the first moment the government of Spain inundated our territory with soldier proclaimed the barbarous rigor of its martial law and determined to drown in seas of blood the legitimate aspirations of the colony, weary of bribery, monopolies, outrages and dishonor. With frenzied fear, amidst the acclamations of the entire nation, the Spanish soldiers have endeavored to make of Cuba a desert strewn with corpses. They have laid waste our fields and have killed our animals, as if they purposed to stamp out all life on our soil. They have butchered our the Spanish administrative policy im

"Such barbarity has proved ineffectual. Cuba has resisted with an indomitable spirit. In yavin has Spain multiplied her armies, ravaged by the lead of the patriots and annihilated by the rigors of the climate. Spain has at last become convinced that she could not subdue us by force; she has attempted to employ other arrangements to obtain by deceifful flattery the temporary prolongation of her decrept

She first begged for the support, even though it might be only moral, of the European powers, which turned a deaf ear to Spain's petition. She then endeavored to gain over by wiles the Triendship of, the United States, offering them the exploitation of our market, but she encountered as an insurmountable barrier the indignation of this great people against Spain's horrible policy of extermination. It then became necessary for Spain to change her methods, at least to conciliate in some way the world at large, and to introduce differences of opinion and emity among the ranks, of the patriots and their supporters."

The manifesto declares that the present reforms offered to Cuba by the Spanish statesmen, to be efficatious should have been the spontaneous product of the national conscience. It says, however, that it is but an expedient to which the Madrid government has recourse, now that it has exhausted all the means of violence and crime, and adds:

"No political change can be stable or fruitful under these conditions. What is granted to either through fear or coercion is withdrawn at the earliest epportunity. But leaving these considerations, which are so essential, the so-called reform is unacceptable to the Cubans, because it does not respond to their necessities, satisfy their aspirations hor recognize the fulfillment of this essential connection with Spain would impose upon. The signers of the menifesto reiter-ate their allegiance to the revolution-ary cause, and pledge themselves to help by all means in their power unti Cuba's complete liberty shall be recog-nized and her absolute independence shall have been achieved.

WEYLER'S BEHAVIOR.

Conduct is Already Bearing Fruit in Spain.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—A special to the Herald from Madrid says: "The fruits of Gen. Weyler's behavior at Havana appear to be already ripening in the peninsula. News received here states that a meeting held at Santander to arrange a demonstration in Wey-ler's favor on his arrival there was characterized by a disgraceful tumult. The chairman declared that only those characterized by a disgraceful tumult. The chairman declared that only those in Weyler's favor had any business to be present. Amid the uproar that followed, a voice was heard crying: 'Why should the nation glorify its executioner? What has Weyler done beyond sending us back thousands of dying soldiers?'

"The police had to disperse the meeting. It is reported that public feeling in Santander is in a very excited state.

"The correspondent in Cuba of the Imparcial says that Gen. Weyler handed over matters to Gen. Blanco in a state of chaos, and that beyond doubt he is preparing a party to oppose the Liberal government.

"It is understood that Señor Romero Robledoon on Monday will make an important speech. As he is considered to have broken away from the Conservative party and to be closely allied with the presumptive policy of Gen. Weyler, his movements and words are regarded with some anxiety."

PASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT. NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Herald announces that A. B. Deguerville corroborates the statements already made by ex-Minister Hannis Taylor. Mr. Deguerville had explained the Cuban situation to Señor Castelar from the Cuban standpoint.

Señor Castelar said: "You are right and we are wrong. It is our fault if Cuba is in revolt. We have governed the island with the sword in the erned the island with the sword in the most selfish, brutal and dishonest manner. Men cannot live without freedom or liberty, any more than the bird can live without air and the fish without water. We must give the Cubans liberty and freedom."

"Oh! then, fight; fight to the bitter end; fight as we all say, till the last cent and the last man has gone. You see, my friend, with us it is a question of honor—we cannot give it up. Howl of Disgust in England Over the Abandonment of the Anglo-Egyptian Campaign—London Cable Gossip.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.-[Special Cable Letter. Copyrighted by the Associated Press.] "On the Brink" is the head under which the Daily News today edi-torially discusses the Anglo-French relations, and it wonders how many times in recent years Great Britain has been on the brink of war with France. The same feeling is known to exist among the well informed of both countries. The news from Lagos, west coast of Africa, on Thursday last, that the French had evacuated Saki, one of the posts in the Lagos Hinterland, which had been occupied by their troops in contravention of the agreement of 1889, leaving that place as soon as the Brit-ish force sent there by Gov. McCallum appeared, shows how serious the situ-ation in West Africa has become, and demonstrates that a collision between French and British troops in this in-stance was only averted by the retirement of the former, and it further shows that such a collision may occur any day.

Although expected, the definite announcement that the Anglo-Egyptian campaign up the Nile has been aban-doned for the present has been the signal for a howl of distrust, similar in tone to the outburst of the Morning Post yesterday, which paper, in a spe-cially-displayed editorial article on the subject, denounced the government for its hesitancy and invertedness on all subject, denounced the government for "its hesitancy and invertedness on all great occasions," adding that the "unfortunate losses in money and blood are due to procrastination, and now when the hour is ripe to vindicate Gordon and to smash the Mahdi nothing is to be done, but a baneful hesitation sets in, a moral influence which paralyzes our statesmen."

Similar denials have been heard from even the most ardent supporters of the ministry. That the latter should fail to continue the Soudan campaign is attributed both to lack of money and to the impossibility of finding British troops for this service until the Indian troubles are over. Any suggestion that the Egyptian troops have already broken the Khalifa's back and are capable of reaching Khartoum alone is frowned down, until it is beginning to be whispered that the Britishers are agreed to let the Egyptians know how much they are capable of, accomplishing alone. In this case, whatever the reason for stopping the campaign may be, it seems to be folly to wait until next year to accomplish what could now, seemingly, be so readily realized, while the Dervishes and other tribes already rescued from the tyranny of the Khalifa are ready to help.

Indeed, the fact that further complications are threatened would seem to emphasize the advisability of hastening the recapture of the Soudan. There is no doubt that British supremary in Central Africa is seriously threatened by the French, whose unmistak-and the British possessions in Center and South Africa, and the knowledge that Great Britain is resting on her oars will cause them to redouble their energies. The Marquis of Salisburry is urged on all sides to take spirited action, and it is insisted if funds are lacking Great Britain must advance them or even supply the amount requisite to reach Khartoum.

While the Ministry is apparently vacillating in this direction, it is showing no lack of energy in the dispute with the French regarding the Lagos Hinterland. The foreign and colonial officers are most busily at work, and are closely following every detail of the movements made. A special map is sent to the Secretary for the Colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, every night, with the latest news and movement marked on it with little flags.

The news from Saki and elsewhere shows that the British governers in West Africa are determined to stop any further French aggression.

Immediately after the occupation of Saki became known at the British Foreign Office, the Marquis of Salisbury sent a strongly-worded dispatch to the French Foreign Office, saying that if a conflict, occurred the responsibility would rest with France, and he also cabled Gov. McCallum to instruct the officers of the British expedition sent to that place not to allow anything to prevent the reoccupation of any British territories thus passed on by the French or other European forces. To this is probably attributable the hasty retirement of the British forces.

From the comments heard in the clubs, it is not likely that John Lawson Johnstone of Kingwood, Kent, who turns out to be the purchaser of the Prince of Wales's famous racing cutter Britannia will be received with open arms in yachting circles. In fact, it is rumored that the Prince sold the yacht on the express condition that the purchaser should not race her, and that she is to be rigged as a cruiser.

An echo of the famous Ardiamont tragedy was heard at Leeds on Wednesday, when Alfred J. The latter said her husband had left her in February, 1896, and had failed to provide for her and her six children, all of whom are under 16 years of age.

It also blames the ministers and the higher classes for their reactionary views and lack of control of the control o their reactionary views and lack of constitutional moderation. FRESNO, Nov. 6.—[Special Dispatch.] The rainstorm of today, though amounting to only a small fraction of an inch, came just at a time to destroy the last of the raisins in this county Three days ago the second crop and all the later pickings of the first crop were on the trays and required two weeks of fine weather to dry toom. The result is that, notwithstanding the usual warnings from the Weather Bureau, a number of growers who hal picked late were caught by this afternoon's cold rain and their last hopes ruined. Every drying-house in the county has been taxed to its full capacity since the last storm, and the amount of the crop in jeopardy today was 25 per cent. This is practically lost, as nothing remains but to send the half-dried rai-sins to wineries and distilleries as seen The total loss has not been figured out as yet in dollars and cents, but it will be quite considerable, and will fall severely on small grow ers. The couple had two children, but both were absent at the time, and there was no witness to the crime. Baumann formerly kept a hotel known as the Old William Tell House, but failed, and since then has eked out a poor existence as barkeeper and waiter. He has been growing morose of late, and has also been drinking heavily. He has been also very jealous of his wife, and this is believed to have been the prime cause of his act. His thirteen-year-old son and ten-year-old daughter left the house an hour before the tragedy, and they say that at the time there were no indications of trouble between their parents.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

ics of Interest Discussed. [ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN JOSE, Nov. 6.—The meeting of the Farmers' Institute was largely attended. Prof. A. P. Hayne of the State University delivered an address on "Control of Wine Fermentation and Special Ferments." In the course of his address he said that a vast part of all the wine produced in California is "doctored," and that much of the material used for this purpose is actrally poison. He referred to the act of the last Legislature making such doctoring a misdemeanor, and confiscating the wine so treated. This bill, he said, was vetoed by the Governor through the influence and pressure of the wine men, who claimed that it would confiscate one-half of all the wine made in the State. Prof. Hayne said the kind of wine produced could be determined by the fermentation, and that this could be largely controlled by the maker.

The institute closed this afternoon. The last paper was by J. A. Filcher, secretary of the State Board of Trade, on "Foreign Markets for California Products."

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6 .- The fact that eight whaling vessels are nipped in the ice at Point Barrow, with nearly two hundred souls on board, is creating widespread feelings of apprehension all along the coast, and particularly among merchants engaged in the whaling business and among sailors and their families. The anxiety has become so great that the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce have determined to hold a meeting for the purpose of formulating a telegraphic dispatch to be sent to the President of the United States, urging him to dispatch a relief expedition to their rescue at the earliest possible moment. An Important Convention to Be Held at Sacramento. [ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 6 .- The State Fruit Growers' Convention, which meets in this city November 16, promises to be one of the largest gatherings of horticulturists ever held in this State. The convention, which will be held un-der the auspices of the State Board of der the auspices of the State Board of Horticulture, in the Senate chamber of the Capitol, will be open to all who are interested in fruit culture and kindred pursuits. There is no membership.

The question of fruit marketing and transportation will occupy part of the time of the convention, which will be in session for four days. The first business that will be considered will be the report of a committee appointed some time ago, at the instance of several fruit shippers, for the purpose of collecting data upon the subject. The opposition, composed of eastern and California agents, will also be represented, and a lively discussion is anticipated, as the growers expect to take the business into their own hands, by organizing into one effective body that cannot be dominated by the fruit agents. A large delegation is expected from the southern part of the State, and it will present a plan for the consideration of the convention which was recently adopted in Los Angeles.

On the opening day, November 16, the delegates will probably be welcomed by Gov. Budd on behalf of the State and by Mayor Hubbard on behalf of the city. Hon. Elwood Cooper, the "Olive King" of Santa Barbara, will respond, and other speakers will follow. In the afternoon R. D. great deal had been printed. The son charged that his father had buried on various premises which he owned $40-000 in coin. He attempted to dig for this, but was stopped by some of the other heirs, chiefly the widow, his mother.

Now it develops that the son was right. Mrs. Sarah Weisman and Mrs. William Vinter, who were formerly the widows of the deceased, under examination today, confessed that money had been found. Under searching cuestions, they confessed to securing $6000. This they had not previously accounted for. When the old pioneer was dying, papers were found on his person. Hale and Norcross Officials Mildly

Cinched by the Court.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6 .- Judge Daingerfield today rendered his decision in the case of the Hale & Norcross mining stock sold by the secretary of the company in defiance of an order of court enjoining the sale. U. Collins, secretary of the company, have each been adjudged guilty of contempt and fined $100, with the alternative of five days in jail.

In the application to Judge Daingerfield for the punishment of Fox and Collins for contempt, it was set forth that the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hale & Norcross Silver Mining Company was held on the 11th day of March, 1897. The president of the company, Martin W. Fox, would not allow 88,856,718 shares of stock belonging to the parties opposed to him to be voted, and declared the stockholders' meeting adjourned without delay. Such action by Fox, it was claimed, perpetuated in office the old trustees who were friendly to Fox. On March 19, 1897, an action was brought to restrain Fox, Collins and other directors from selling 22,229% shares of stock belonging to certain parties opposed to Fox.

An injunction was duly issued and served on Fox, Collins and others. On August 14, 1897, while the injunction was in force, the defendants, Fox and Collins, sold this 22,2294 shares of stock.

FOR SALE—A SUNDAY TALK ON HOUSES.

Perhaps you are interested in houses and are figuring on building yourself a home; if so you will find that it will cost you about 20 per cent. more to build than the estimate your architect gave you some months ago. This is due to the advanced number, hardware and all building faterials. Possibly the difference cuts quie a figure with you. You may have allowed the full amount which you feel you can aford to invest; you cannot spend more money and you don't care for a home that is lacking in room or cenveniences. There is but one sensible way for you to bursue. Lock at some of the houses already built and see whether you cannot find one suitable to your tastes as well as your bank account. A little paint; a little decorating, a little art glass here and there, placed by a competent architect will make an old house look new. Many of the best homes in the city are always for sale, because of continual changes in the families of the owners. Some grow too large, while others grow too small, and the owners in cities are enforced to look for a new location and frequently willing to place a very reasonable price on the old place. This necessity is your opportunity. I have houses for sale on Hope street, Flower street, Grand ave. Olive street, Figueroa street, and in the Westlake section at $35.90 to $15.000; some of which cannot be built today at the prices at which they are offered for sale; they are all surrounded by handsome grounds and some have beautiful trees and attractive shrubbery in the yards that have taken years of care; they are the kind of homes the owners don't like to advertise, but if the matter interest you in a house I am sure I can interest you further you can find all particulars by inquiring at my office. If I cannot interest you further you can find all particulars by inquiring at my office. If I cannot interest you in a house I am sure I can interest you in a house I am sure I can interest you in a house I am sure I can i

Telegraph wires were destroyed by the hurricane and details of the damage are lacking. The roads in the vicinity of the town are made practically impassable by uptooted trees and broken telephone poles. A high bridge over Weber Creek, two miles distant, was blown to uleces and Sheriff George Hilbert, who was driving over the bridge when the storm struck it, would doubtless have gone into the cahon below had not the horses run away at the first crack of timbers and pulled him out of harm's way. At Diampon Springs, three miles distant, whole buildings were moved from their foundations, and others were unroofed. A boarding-house was moved ten feet, finding lodgment against a hillside. Two women who were in the house were injured. The course of the blow was from southwest to northeast, but lasted for an hour. # LOS ANGELES REAL ESTATE MARKET.

"T HERE is not, in my opinion, in the United States today a city that offers oqual advantages for the safe and profitable investment of capital in city property as Los MESSRS. WILDE & STRONG of No. 228. West Fourth attest in the Chamber of Messer fourth attest in the Chamber of Investment of capital in city property as Los Angeles."

That was the remark made by one of a group of four real estate men, chatting together near the corner of Broadway and Sector of the control of the city which offered the best inducements for investment. With that exception all seemed agreed that the conditions governing the real estate market in this city at the present time were sound and reliable; there was no evidence of any speculative movement; holders were firm, but not unapproachable; they were willing to sell if they got what they believed their property to be worth, but none were in a mood to make any sacrifice. Purchasers, on the other hand, were not lacking; there were many who stood ready to take up anything offered at what they believed to be bargain figures, at the same time being careful not to allow the desire of acquisition to interfere with due discretion. On the whole, the conditions of the real estate market were by these four pronounced sound, and they could see nothing in sight of its of the control of the contro of disturb the existing satisfactory state of ifairs.

There are many causes which go to explain these satisfactory conditions, among which the following may be cited as the more prominent: First, the generally improved financial and commercial condition of affairs throughout the entire country consequent on the revival in business which a protective sariff has engendered. Thousands and thousands of men who are now earning good wages were a year ago folding their hands in idleness. With the revival in business came abundant harvests fetching good prices. New mining fields were developed, the money from which sought permanent investment, and, over and above all, money that had in the days of doubt and depression been hoarded up was brought to the light of day and made to reproduce itself. These, and many other good things happened, all converging toward one head—prosperity—with the result that land values again asserted themselves, and have taken up a fixed position. Holders know what they have a right to expect, and purchasers know what they may safely give.

amount of money will find a safe investment in either of them.

Ben Willte of No. 235 West First street, when asked how business looked at the present time, did not have to stop and think before giving his answer, for in the cheeriest manner he replied: "It not only looks good, but it feels good. Why," he went on, "we thought about this time last year that we had nothing to grumble at, but real estate business this year is better than it was then. The man stronger and more assured tone that the stop of the stronger are not hunting after the stronger and more assured tone they are willing to sell if they are office they are willing to sell if they are office they are willing to sell if they are office they are willing to sell if they are willing to purchasers; at the stronger are not rushing wildly about to take in everything they can get hold of, at any figure, they are willing to purchase city property whenever they can figure out to their satisfaction that it presents the advantages of safe investment coupled with the prospect of a reasonable increase within a reasonable time on the amount paid for it. There is evidence on all sides that Southern California is adding to its population and to its producers, and this, apart from favorable local conditions, is exercising a beneficial effect on Los Angeles city property, and helping to strengthen values. Then, besides all this, there is evidence to show that Los Angeles is steadily increasing its population, and there are many others besides myself, men who make it their business to closely watch these things, who will tell you the ratio of increase made are quite up to the ratio of increase made during the last five or its years. Yes, there is evidence to show money on it at the most reasonable rates."

so well fixed that there is no trouble to borrow money on it at the most reasonable rates."

MESSRS. GRIDER & DOW of No. 139
South Broadway, who have handled and settled up some of the largest and best-known tracts in Los Angeles, when asked as to the present condition and prospects of the real estate market, in this city, answered: "Why, they could hardly be better. The present is good, and the future looks even better; what more could the real estate mank ask for?" They continued, saying: "Without going into details of the properties we have to offer, it may be said that one of the best features to be noted in the present condition, of the market is the almost entire absence of speculation. There is little or no speculative movement in evidence. Property that is charging hands is at market prices with condense to the demand or orange-grove and income-paying country properties. Successful mine-owners are among those who are seeking investments in Los Angeles city property and in income-paying country properties. Investments of this class are on the increase, and as it is safe to affirm that successful mining men P. Alaska to Mexico will turn their attention's Southern California as a desirable place of sidence and profitable field for investment, it is equally certain to affirm that the realistic market of Los Angeles will receive thirrow untold benefits. Again, the general parity now existing in the eastern and we'n States, and the improved financial conductor the pople will permit many to come we have been hitherto prevented. If Angeles stands preminent as their poin' destination. We therefore feel that we see it industry when we say that fully 75 per cent. of the total number coming to the Coast will head for Los Angeles."

MESSRS. WILDE & STRONG of No. 228

West Fourth street, in the Chamber of Commerce building, is one of the best-known firms in the city. It is composed of F. B. Wilde and Frank R. Strong. Both of them are experienced real estate men, the former having been in the business for more than thirty years, and, as he states, was formerly the owner of one-third of the capital stock of the Easton, Eldridge & Co. Pacific Coast Land Bureau, and the Los Angeles Land Bureau, allis partner, Mr. Strong, has had ten years' experience in the business, and two years experience in the business, and two years' experience in the business, and two years' experience in the business, and ten years' experience in the offer as good to be the present status of the real estate market in this city, and that never at any time, in their opinion, did the market offer as good opportunities for safe investment as a surface of the present time; prices were firm whom the present time; prices were firm who inflation. They have recene firm on the market of the proper was a shighly tract and the advantages it possessed for homescekers, they said; "Before offering a lot in this tract for sale the streets were graded, graveled, sewered, sidewalked, curbed and water-piped at an expense of over $12,000, and the owners are now reaping a rich reward for their enterprise in the sale of lots for homes. Besides these improvements," they went on to say, "the tract is within ten minutes' walk or five minutes' ride of the business center of the city, and whoever is lucky enough to buy a lot at our present prices will get a great bargain."

Incky enough to buy a lot at our present prices will get a great bargain."

"No." SAID W. I. Hollingsworth of No. 338 South Broadway, "I am not giving way to any feeling of uneasiness or anxiety over the present or future condition of the real estate market in this city. Things not only look well, but they are well. There is an active inquiry for both city and country property, and the prospects for a good winter business are better than in any previous season during the last three years."

Mr. Hollingsworth stated that he was now promoting a sale of lots and acreage property on the Santa Monica electric short line. The property consists of a tract of 159 acres between Los Angeles and Sherman. He offerthis as a whole or in parts at an attractive figure, and he expresses his confidence in hing able to dispose of the whole of it durin the current season. "Then I have," he continued, "the Estrella tract, on which I have begun the erection of several modern cot tages, and am prepared to build others any time to suit purchasers, and sell then on the installment plan. The tract is closs in, one block only from the Central-avenual real great that he had recently sold a property. He adde that he had recently sold a property as South Main street, "and I am now opening a price that will insure a sale within a short time."

corner on Main near Adams street at a price that will insure a sale within a short time.

S. K. LINDLEY of No. 106 South Broadway, one of the most experienced real estate operators in Los Angeles, expresses his absolute confidence in a continuance of the existing favorable conditions of the real estate market in this city. Speaking of them he said: "There will be an active demand for both business and residence property; also for improved country property and for land planted to deciduous fruits." Referring more particularly to inside property, of which planted to deciduous fruits. "Referring hos makes a specialty, he gave it as his option that a steady advance in values would be moted, and as he is looked and would be noted, and as he is looked to the work of the considered as having more than the same property. It is not to some residence lots in the Nob Hill tract, northeast of Westlake Park, which, as he pointed out, are admirably situated and in good demand at from $1000 to $1500 each. The tract is being rapidly improved, and can be ranked as one of the choice residence locations of the city. Mr. Lindley stated that he had recently disposed of a piece of property he owned, 42x120 feet, near the corner of Fourth street. 120 feet west of Broadway, which he intends to improve next spring. He also mentioned a sale lately made to H. W. Hellman of 80x197 feet at the northwest corner of Seventeenth and Figueroa streets, at $80 per front foot. On Main street between Twelfth and Jefferson streets he has property for sale which he states presents a safe and profitable investment.

lots for sale there. Ranch property is coming to the front with every indication of its being in good demand."

**J COULD cite you a dozen reasons," said Mr. Scherer of the firm of W. J. Scherer & Co., No. 108 South Broadway, "why Los Angeles property values should advance, but not one to the contrary. There is a continued inflow of people and capital into this city. That inflow is steady, unremitting. It is not great enough on any one day to make itself apparent on the street, but it is coming right along all the time. Never since I have been in business have I had so many letters from eastern people inquiring after property in Southern California. You see, times are good in the East just now, and those who want to sell their property there so as to come out here can do so now. Where times were hard they couldn't sell, nobody had money on the continued saying, "of building houses on lots for parties who want to buy on the installment plan, but we differ from some other real easte me in in that we furnish the lot, when that is required, in addition to building the house, and then we sell both house and lot on easy terms. Our clients have the privilege of paying off, any amount of their indebtedness at any time between the regular fixed dates of paying off, any amount of their indebtedness at any time between the regular fixed dates of paying off any amount stops right there. We have sold over twenty places on this plan, and expect to sell many more. We have some good locations in the Central-avenue district. Reviewing the situation, I consider that the present time offers guarantees for safe and profitable invesement in Los Angeles property greater than have before been known."

"W ITH the firm belief," said Mr. Garland of the firm of W. M. Garland & Co., No. 214 Wilcox Block, "that Los Angeles will have a population of not less than 200,000 within six years, how can I help but think that property values in Los Angeles must advance? And, besides that, there are lots of other good things that may happen to us; the construction of the railroad to Sait Lake City, to say nothing of the more than prob-

Two Baseball Games Today - The ship Events-Some Excellent Sport Promised

For the football players, the weather contests on the gridiron it was anything but pleasant. The wind blew all thing but pleasant. The wind blew all afternoon, and it was a chilly wind. There were three football games yesterday, namely: The High School and 'Varsity; the Military Academy and Throop University of Pasadena, and the Occidental College and Y.M.C.A. elevens.

The greater interest centered in the High School and 'Varsity contest, and it proved a surprise and a disappointment. The 'Varsity eleven will have to play better ball than they put up yesterday if they hope to make anything of a shore g against some of the crack eams (Southern California. The te 'Varsity team averaged ty pounds heavier than the col boys, and yet they won 0, and were more than lucky at. Two accidents, one of them

BASEBALL TODAY. At Fiesta Park this afternoon the Trilbys will play the Seventh Regi-ments and the Los Angeres. The exments and the Los Angeres. The exciting game of last Sunday will undoubtedly bring a large crowd to witness the Trilby-Los Angeles contest. The colored boys thought they got a little the worst of the decisions last Sunday in their game with the Los Angeles, and will probably play such ball today as will render close decisions unnecessary. The Seventh Regiments are liable to prove a surprise. They have five new players, including Eastman at first; Thurman at third, Barker, the famous pitcher of the Stocktons in '94: Edwards and an unknown. Morrow will catch both games. The line-up, with the changes mentioned, will be as heretofore given. Play will be called promptly at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

There is thus made up a sort of journalistic remnant-counter or newspaper rag-bag, which is surrounded with variegated black borders of varying! degrees of hideousness, and around which must coil and curl and around which must coil and curi and convulate the genuine news of the day. The hapless purchaser of a newspaper is now forced to pick out the news not only from amid the pictures which deface the pages of the dailies, but from these typographical monstrosities as well.

A Trolley-car Parade.

[Toledo Blade:] When the Republicans had their first grand rally in Brooklyn they hit upon a novel and effective scheme which utilized the famous trolleys of the city. Each district delegation was conveyed to the meeting on a special trolley car, and these cars were decorated in many fantastic ways. Most of them carried a profusion of red, white and blue lights, pictures of party candidates, and a generous amount of bunting. Some had banners hung along the sides with mottoes more or less remarkable for their originality. One of these, combining the names of the candidates, read: "Van Wyck is pretty Low, by George, but Ben Tracy's all right!" One can find no better comparison for this long line of gally-adorned cars than the blazoned cages of a traveling circus. The political trolley party may have existed before this season, but it is certainly near to being a novelty. A Trolley-car Parade.

Test Your

man who fairly thinks himself to be in a neurotic condition should make the true nerve test. This is done by con-centrating the mind on a given object for an ordinary length of time. If you find gloomy, metancholy thoughts stealing over you, it is treatment you need, and the kind of treatment that will restore you to vigorous strength. Weak-ness comes upon men in a variety of ways. If these errors are stopped in time and the young man pays good attention to the laws of health, no bad effects result; but if those vicious habits are continued and other bad habits con-tracted, the individual comes to the point where he must get medical aid or become an exhausted, burnt-out old man. Premature decay is the sad con-dition of many men today. Now you know the reason, or the cause; what whow the reason, or the cause; what will you do? Your own sense suggests proper medical attention. Where to get it? From a place where others have received like attention. Where is that place? Answer, the Hudson Mediwell. Hudyan cures spermatorrhea and nervous debility. Write for cir-

The greater interest centered in the High School and 'Varsity contest, and it proved a surprise and a disappoint-ment. The 'Versity eleven will have to play better ball than they put up yesterday if they hope to make the crack of a showing against some of the crack of a showing against some of the crack of a showing against some of the crack teams of Southern California. The men on the 'Varsity team averaged fully twenty pounds heavier than the High School boys, and yet they won only 10 to 0, and were more than lucky te get that. The exciting game of last Sunday will undoubtedly bring a large crowd to witness the Trilby-Los Angeles contest. They jetsam generally of the news of the jetsam generally of the news of the day. A Trolley-car Parade.

[Toledo Blade:] When the Republicans had their first grand rally in Brooklyn they hit upon a novel and effective scheme which utilized the famous trolleys of the city. Each district delegation was conveyed to the meeting on a special trolley car, and these cars were decorated in many fantastic ways. Most of them carried a prefusion of red, white and blue lights, pictures of party candidates, and a generous amount of bunting. Some had banners hung along the sides with mottoes more or less remarkable for their originality. One of these, combining the names of the candidates, read: "Van Wyck is pretty Low, by George, but Ben Tracy's all right!" One can find no better comparison for this long line of gaily-adorned cars than the blazoned cages of a traveling circus. The political trolley party may have existed before this season, but it is certainly near to being a novelty.

true nerve test. This is done by con-centrating the mind on a given object for an ordinary length of time. If you find gloomy, melancholy thoughts steal ing over you, it is treatment you need, and the kind of treatment that will restore you to vigorous strength. Weakness comes upon men in a variety of ways. If these errors are stopped in time and the young man pays good at-tention to the laws of health, no ba-deffects result; but if those vicious habits are continued and other bad habits contracted, the individual comes to the point where he must get medical aid or become an exhausted, burnt-out old become an exhausted, burnt-out old-man. Premature decay is the sad con-dition of many men today. Now you know the reason, or the cause; what will you do? Your own sense suggests proper medical attention. Where to get it? The gathering was with-out political significance, and was a personal matter solely, and it is n exaggeration to say that it was in all respects the most happily-conceived and perfectly-conducted affair of its kind that has taken place in Los An-

Peles for many years.

Among those who assembled to do bonor to the Senator were men stalwart in the Republican faith, but no Republican was there to abnegate his policy, or to pledge nimself to Sena-tor White, or any one else. Partisan politics had no place in the menu, or the after-dinner talks. The only ref-erence to a political matter, and that hot of a partisan nature, was Senator White's remark that he had reached the goal of his ambition, and that it extremely doubtful if he would teek the place again.

The menu cards, which were decorated with cleverly-executed water ated with cleverly-executed water-lor sketches and conceits applicable o the individual participants in feast, contained quotations from Sena-tor White's public utterances that gave the keynote for the speeches. At the top of the card was this declara-tion, made in a speech on the Cuban I will be guided as to what I shall

to and how I shall vote by the ption of duty."

From the same speech these words "It takes more than make a competent make a competent to the ption of the ption liso were quoted: "It takes more than in ordinary man to make a competent American-eitizen—more than a desire to be free. It requires labor, intelligence, patience, prudence, submission to law, trave and thorough conception of uty."

He realized that a man who expects to have in his keeping the lives and fortunes of clints, must be conscientious, and that unless people know him to be conscientious they will not entrust their interests to his keeping. He practiced law along that line, and later, when he was thrust into political places that he had not sought, he followed the same line as in the law and always tried to do his duty, let the result be what it might. When chosen to represent California in the Senate of the United States, he achieved his highest political ambition, and whether he should ever be a candidate for reflection was more than ved his highest point at another, whether he should ever be a cane for reelection was more than

Company with Another Lad Dively and Niemeyer Try the Merits of a Rifle - Death of Dively the Result.

Carl Dively, 16 years of age, was show and instantly killed by fourteen-year-old Irwin Niemeyer yesterday after-noon in McNeil's Cañon, near Sycamore The shooting is thought to have been accidental.

Last Saturday Carl and Irwin, who were chums, found a 38 caliber Winthester rifle standing against a tree in Eagle Rock Valley. They first saw the rifle about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but thinking it had been temporarily left at that place by a hunter they let it alone. When they returned after dark and found the rifle still there, the oys appropriated it. Since that time oth lads had been doing odd chores for small amounts, and yesterday, just a week after the finding of the rifle, their united capital was found adequate for the end in view, and they purchased a box of rifle cartridges. John Blair, 15 years of age, was invited to accompany them on their trial trip with the rifle, and he accepted. The three took turns at firing the rifle, shooting at whatever made a good tar-

American citizen—more than a desire to be free. It requires labor, intelligence, batterne, sudmission to law, and thorough conception.

From a speech on the harbor question in 1896 was taken this sentence. "But I would sacrifice that/honor (the Benatorial office) rather than yield to enseless clamor, to threats or flattery, to condemnation or appliause." "Surfown and restricted and unpartitotic is the theory which suggests that which will build up one portion of the nation and will not affect any other part. The active, intelligent population upon the laborard cannot greatly prosper or teriously suffer without a corresponding sensation in the interior. That when the united the property of the great hody politic must send a thrill through the whole of her mighty form." Senator White was peaking of the Nicaraguan Canal when he uttered those words but they might also be applied to another public project. Griffith sat at the head of the total, Mass togethmater, and at the single of the total through the whole of the distinguished public services of Senator White were J. A. Graves, Charles Forman, J. The High School football team of this city and the St. Vincent College team of Los Angeles met on the local grounds near the Terminal station this afternoon and played a tie game, s 0 to 0. The St. Vincent ceam is much the heavier of the two, but Pasadena had a little the best of it, the ball be-ing within ten yards of the visitors' goal at the close of the game. Many a Pasadena boy had apples to eat today who had not eaten them before in weeks. One of the hind wheels of an apple peddler's wagon came off on Orange Grove avenue, and the horse ran away; spilling apples along the street for over a mile. A small boy sat in the wagon all the time holding on for all he was worth, and when the animal was stopped on West Colorado street, he made a grand rush to recover as much of the fruit as possible.

THE BABY WAS SAVED.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Allen of the Bonita Ranch had a thrilling experience Friday afternoon while driving down the grade from the Sweetwater dam. When about half way down the steep grade the horses became unmanageable and ran over the embankment. Mr. and Mrs. Allen both jumped, but as Mrs. Allen was holding a small babe in her arms she did not get out of the wagon soon enough, and was carried down the steep embankment for fully fifty feet. She clung to the child, however, and, strange to say, succeeded in keeping it from all harm. But the mother was badly injured by the fall and the wagon was reduced to kindling wood. Mr. Allen succeeded in getting out of the wagon in time to escape going over the precipice.

GRAVE-CHARGE AGAINST CAPT.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 6.—A few days ago Capt. A. W. Hall arrived in this city from the southern coast and stated that his schooner the Grace, had been wrecked at Turtle Bay. Three miners who were aboard the Grace have now arrived at San Quintin. Lower California, and today a telegram was received from them by the authorities here asking that Capt. Hall be arrested on a charge of having attempted to murder the party by poisoning them. The men who sent this dispatch were put off the schooner while sick at Santa Roseifa, from which place they made their way to San Quintin, 200 miles distant. Capt. Hall is in the hospital under the eyes of the INDIANS KILLED CAPT. PORTER.

INDIANS KILLED CAPT. PORTER.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 6.—[Associated Press.] The report of the killing of Capt. Porter of the schooner World and Sailor Johnson at Tiburon Island was confirmed today by a letter received by R. H. Robbins of this city from George H. Beermaker, who wrote from Carbo. Sonora, Mex., under date of the ith inst. In that letter he says that Porter stood up and fought to the last, killing five Indians before he gave up. Johnson, however, fell at the first volley. The Indians were armed with rifes, while Porter had only a shotgun. When Porter fell, he dropped into his small boat bleeding from wounds in the head. The Indians thought him dead, but he sprang up and fired at them again. This was his last effort, and he died immediately afterward. Beermaker adde:

"The Mexican that brought this news says that the Indians say they never saw a man fight as Porter did. I don't believe there is any mistake, for this man has the names of the men and the boat in his book; I hope there may be, but I am afraid they are gone."
The mission of Capt. Porter to Tiburon was to gather curios, in which there is a considerable trade with tourists in this city.

Fish Plentiful in Avalon Bay, Af fording Good Sport.

AVALON (Catalina Island,) Nov. 6 .-Regular Correspondence.] Fishing at Avalon was never better than at pres-ent. The schools of mackerel and sar-dines which daily come into the bay attract the yellowtail, and fishermen hardly find it necessary, to go out in boats. Most of them use the wharf from which to cast their lines. The little sardines and mackerel are snagged on hooks and used for yellow-tail bait. Notwithstanding the fact that the power boat Alphia has, in the past two or three weeks, taken with a selne twenty-five or thirty tons of these little fish for the cannery at San Pe

Arriving there Reynolds offered to go bail for the old fellow, whereupon he too, was shoved into the lock-up and kept there half an hour, although a number of his friends agreed to put up any bond required for his release, and he himself had $250 in his pocket which he offered as a pledge for his appearance in court. Mr. Reynolds says he has the testimony of many of the best citizens of Anaheim that he was not intoxicated, and that the old vocallst was causing no disturbance—or at least no more than the Salvation Army, which was just across the street. It is intimated that a warm time is in store, as Marshal Steadman's bondsmen are among the best citizens of Anaheim.

The Santa Fé Company is trying an experiment on bridge building on the Santa Ana River, in this county, which promises success in spite of all the frivolus onslaughts of that stream. The eastern end of the old bridge, where the heaviest current runs, is being replaced by four sixty-foot spans, each of solid riveted steel rib, six feet in depth, and resting on concrete plers sunk sixteen feet below the river bed. These plers are eleven and a half feet in width and thirty feet in length at the bottom, and five feet in width and sixteen feet in length at the top. They are of solid concrete, the formula for which was one barrel of cement to a cubic yard of mixed river sand and crushed lime rock. The bridge is on the main line to Los Angeles, between orange and Anaheim, and the entire structure will be replaced by similar work, if the bed of the river gives evidence this winter of being permanently located. This seems to be the case, as the excavation for the two eastern spans ran into a clay subsoil, while to the west the hole went abruptly off into a bed of river gravel. Water is at present twenty-two feet from the surface at this point.

Mr. Snow placed some "Rhizoblus ventialis" in the north end some time ago, and the little scale destroyers are evidently making a clean job as they go.

We Never Burden You With the Usual-It's the Unusual You Can Expect at Hale's.

Maybe You Want to Save Money on Things for the Home.

Who wouldn't? But how few do? Deceived not so much from ignorance, as from the sharp practices of merchants. An instance: Table linen. What else would you call the half cotton stuff? We do not think linen is linen, if there is a thread in it save flax. Nothing is sold over our counters as linen, that is not all linen. Trash is dear at any cost. Skimping is resorted to by the maker in order to turn out cheap goods; skimped as to quality, it takes the constant use of the acid to keep cotton goods out of the woolen section; skimped as to size, we must use the tape measure incessantly to keep our muslin underwear standard size; skimped as to workmanship, it requires constant alertness ts keep garments in stock that are made to wear and not to sell. We'll give a practical demonstration this week of what we mean-Of course you'll read Housekeeping Linens, and a Story.

We've never been pleased with the ready-made sheets and pillow cases offered on the market. They're skimped as to quality and workmanship. Makers said they would never be improved, as they wouldn't sell if they cost more. Hale Bros. said they could be improved. They are. Listen. Our chief went to the heaviest manufacturer, picked out the best muslin, showed them how he wanted them made, and then wanted to know how big an order it would require to put the retail price under 10c on pillow cases, and 35c on sheets. The answer would have taken away the breath of any ordinary merchant-12,000 pillow cases and 10,000 sheets. The order was placed. Our share has arrived.

The art'of singing seems to be dead there, if one can judge from the methods of the young Italian singers. There are no teachers left there, for one thing, and the style of Italian music, written now does not demand fine singing, as the older operas did. After a year or two, in which they learn some operas of the old repertofre, they go on the stage. Then they begin to sing the modern Italian music, or, what is worse for them, the Wagner operas, and within a few years their volces are gone. But above all, it is the lack of good teachers that is responsible-for their poor training. I was a pupil of the older Lamperti, and when he died one of the best was lost. Today I know of very few women who know what the best methods of the old singers were. Adelina Patti, above every one elses is a singer. ULES CLARETIE, the first French dramatic critic, has written a letter from Paris to the London Ath. enacum, in which he tells some wholesome truths about the gloomy hopeless introspective plays which be-long to the English stage, as well as There is plenty of room or a reform in this respect, both in ingland and America. He says:
"Only yesterday I was talking with a young dramatist, one of the leaders in his own generation, one of the masters of tomorrow, or even, I might say, of today. He has a new comedy in hand for this winter, marked by virtrous tendencies, or, at any rate, more or less respectable. He enjoyed telling me that he hoped for a great success (quite apart from that eternal hope which all authors have cherished r all comedies since comedies and caters came into being,) on this bund. The public, our French publie, seems to have taken a complete aversion to unsympathetic, bitter, pes-simistic pieces—works which are as aimless as they are violent—and to be

"Are we growing more virtuous? To this question he replied, 'I know nothing about that, but I do know the masses are tired of pieces which are intentionally somber and gloomy—works on which the theaters have subsisted—more or less badly, no doubtfor some considerable time." "The reaction was inevitable. We have too many rogues and sluts on the stage. This evil and, in the main, insipid crew has ended by tiring us out, and we want, if not novelty (novelty is hard to get in this world.) at any rate, something which shall be something else!

The success of 'La Vie de Boheme' is congenial from this point of view. Henry Murger's play is antiquated, no doubt, and in many passages altogether unskillful and childish; but we find it on revival, in spite of its defects and its clumsiness, to retain a charming odor of youth and an artiess vigor which carries everythings before it. Laughter and tears, these are the sole resource of the stage to captivate the audience. All the rules, all the philosophies in the world can impart no further secret. Musette laughs and Mimi cries. There is not much lbsenism about a work-girl's smiles, or the death of a young maiden as sire leaves the hospital, but their presentment does as a matter of fact perpetually stir the emotions, and those who, like our triend M. Jules Lemaitre, cannot understand this fact; cannot understand the carries are secret. cannot understand this fact; cannot understand either that the theater shich 'speaks to the heart' is the true theater, in spite of occasional instances of the decrepit and obsolete. A withered sprig of illac is no treasure, doubtless; course for us their is. less; enough for us that it is a me-mento of youth, and seems to retain the aroma of days gone by. Murger's pot of mignonette must have its charms, for at the present moment it is being revived throughout Europe with M. Puccini's music and M. Leon-cavallo's songs.

"Suppose they are phantoms; what matters it if they give us a moment's illusion, which brings back youth and

"That is why, when Murger's heroes rat is way, when Murger's neroes sing Youth Exists but Once' the youths come to listen to them as if it were the refrain of their natural joyousness, while the old, too, prepare to understand them, as if it were the echo of the strains they once sang.

"That these idiotic young men have ad neither Schopenhauer nor Neitzsche; that they are senseless and improbable; that their morals are more liberal than the 'two moralities' formerly invented by a practical philosopher—all this is possible, and I grant it; but the young playwright who spoke to me is right; there is a reaction in the public taste, and the success at the Vaudeville of a pleasant comédie de genre entitled 'Jalousie' is a further proof of the fact.

the public taste, and the success at the Vaudeville of a pleasant comédie de genne entitled 'Jalousie' is a further proof of the fact.

"For all that we are not going back, I am well assured, to the burlesques, the nonsense or the clowning of mere entertainers of the crowd. The serious drama will have its place, and the Righest place, in the engagements of the public. What a pity it is we cannot play the piece which was left unfinished by Alexandre Dumas the younger'. In the 'Route de Thébes' one would have been everything that a master of his subject and of his art could do to rivet the imagination during the theatrical space of three-hours. Pray believe that it is not the manager of the Comédie Francaise who is expressing these sentiments, and also that I should be the last person to obtude my own opinion in theatrical matters. The sentiments are those of the observer, of the spectator, so to speak; and I notice this kind of modification of the public taste just when M. Antoine, the pugnacious and daring founder of the Theatre Libre, is reopening his establishment and commencing the battle anew. Here M. Brieux is giving a doleful comedy in which modern matrimony is the only subject of dissection.

"Moreover, M. Antoine intends to

Moreover, M. Antoine intends to "Moreover, M. Antoine intends to present a new work by M. Francois de Curel. La Part du Lion, in which, it seems, the social problem which just now divides the bourgeoisle and the people is handled with much intrepidity. The 'lion's share' should certainly be the pertion which the all-powerful middle classes have arrogated to themselve in the conduct of public affairs. It does not one of those who are content to stage an idea from the ballad-opera. He is a thinker, and wants to make other think."

Young authors may find encouragement in the successful career of the American play, "In Old Kentucky." which comes to the Los Angeles Theater next Monday and Tuesday evenings. November 8 and 9. For four successive years it has filled theaters in every part of this land, and it bids fair to continue doing so indefinitely. It is one of the most notable instances of enduring popularity in a play that the enduring popularity in a play that the American stage has had. Manager Litt has retained the original company, all of his clever pickaninnies, Queen Bess, the favorite black thoroughbred, and the other horses, and has provided new scenery throughout for this season's feur.

Lindsays, which resulted some years before the opening of the play in the treacherous killing of the father of Madge Brierly and one Ben Lorey by Lem Lindsay. Frank Layson, a rich young man from the blue grass, falls in love with Madge and arouses the jealousy of Joe Lorey, who is determined to find and kill Lindsay, who has become wealthy under the name of Horace Holton, having failed to bring about the marriage of his daughter Barbara with Layson, attempts to make Lorey murder him. Failing in this, he determines to ruin Layson by destroying the latter's favorite mare, Queen Bess, which is to run on the morrow in the race, the Ashland Oaks. If the race is not won by Queen Bess, Layson is a ruined man. Lindsay's scheme is foiled by Madge, who rescues the horse from the burning stable. On the day of the race, the jockey gets drunk, and Madge, disguised as a jockey from New York, rides the horse to victory. Eventually Frank Layson weds Madge; Lem Lindsay, allas Holton, is discovered and meets death at the hands of Lorey, and all ends happily.

The famous Knaben-Kapelle and a long programme of star attractions is the announcement for next week at the Orpheum.

The chief attraction is the Knaben-Kapelle or Hungarian Boys' Band. These forty little fellows ranging in age from 6 to 16 years, have set San Francisco music mad for the past thirteen weeks, playing the longest consecutive engagement of any musical organization in that city. Los Angeles is the second city to be visited since they left their homes in far-away Hungary, last July. They were students in a military and musical school—an Austrian West Point—in Billed, a Saxon settlement in the south of Hun-

ary. where musicians are trained for the Kaiser Franz Josef's service. This school has given to the world such men as Neuner and Muller, famous all over the Old World as directors, and Komzak, composer of Czardas and Hungarian music. Mr. Walter heard this juvenile band on his last visit to Europe, and, becoming impressed with their musical ability and commercial value as an attraction in America, prevailed upon the Austrian government to grant a two years' leave of absence for a tour under his direction, their earnings to be devoted to the support of the school from which they come. Their repertoire embraces American marches, negro melodies, Italian operas, Wagnerian selections and home music—the melodies and Czardas of far away Hungary.

While the band is the chief attraction, the accompanying show is as good as any given here. Arthur and Jennie Dunn, the clever and diminutive comedy duo in a lively sketch, "The Actress and the Bell Boy;" Ola Hayden, a charming chanteuse with a wonderful contra-tenor voice; Hayden and Hetherton, the refined sketch artists, in a witty and entertaining comedicta; Press Eldridge, the prince of monologue comedians; O'Brien and Havel, the finished and graceful dancer; and Weston and Herbert, the musical duo.

Edwin Milton Royle's celebrated comedy-drama "Friends" will be put on the boards of the Burbank by the Broadway Theater Company tomorrow night for a week's run, and should prove a winner, as it is an especially strong and clever play.

The story told is of a singer, Marguerite Otto, the step-daughter of Hans Otto, an oplum fiend. Two impecunionus young friends, Adrian Karje, a pianist of ability, and John Paden, Jr., a writer, are each in love with the singer, but the later sacrifices himself for his friend, who finally weds her. Harold Hunting, manager of a theater, likewise becomes enamored of the singer, and seeks to win her favor, but she spurns his suit. He resorts to falsehood and trickery, and tells Marguerite that she is an illegitimate child; that he is the only witness to her mother's marriage, which was not a valid one. He threatens to reveal this knowledge unless she consents to become his wife. Failing in this he endeavors to enlist Hans Otto's aid in his behalf, but the old man, when in his sober senses, will do nothing for him. Knowing his weakness, Hunting keeps him supplied with opium, and while stupified with the drug, imprisons him in his apartments. The two friends discover, the old man's plight and come to his rescue, but arrive too late. Hunting resists them, but they succeed in breaking into the room and find the old man lying dead upon the floor, a victim of the terrible drug, Harold Hunting meets with the pumishment he so justly deserves.

There are a number of intensely interesting scenes, one of them being the love scene in the second act between Marguerite and Adrian. Another strong and effective situation is that where Hans Otto tries to conquer his longing for the fatal drug.

Miss Traux will assume the role of Adrian Karje, the young musician, Mr. Hallock that of John Paden, Jr., the poet. Mr. Drew will be seen as Hans Otto. The rest of the cast will be acceptably fille shapely, yet with winning ways that have made her name a household word. Her first appearance is comical in the extreme—a great elephant moves onto the stage, and perched away up on his back is little "Corinne." From that moment until the curtain falls on the final act the merriment and interest never flag. Corinne is this season surrounded with a large organization, comprising some sixty people. The costuming is pronounced excellent and the scenery, superb. Corinne's wardrobe alone has called for the expenditure of what to many people would be considered a small fortune. This company will be seen next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinée at the Los Angeles Theater.

Johnstone Bennett, who is never long without a new and novel scheme, has again decided to leave the stage. She intends to open a store in New York City for the sale of such hats and haberdashery as she has used of recent years to adorn her own person. It will be remembered that these adornments earned for her the somewhat masculine name of "Jackey."

E. H. Sothern has had a lot of trouble in finding a suitable play for this season, for, after "Change Alley" falled, he was obliged to go backward, in point of time at least, to "The Lady of Lyons" and "Lord Chumley." It is now reported that he will shortly produce a dramatization of the novel "Henry Esmond," made by Glen Macdonough and Louis Shipman.

[London Athenaeum:] Foolish and meaningless enough is the practice of calling on an actor to doft on the conclusion of a first performance, his assumed character, and make, in propria persona, a speech to the audience. We hear now that the custom is growing in America of extorting from a popular actor a speech every, night. If the information is true, the practice is certain to establish itself here. With the bait of folly in front of it, the playgoing public is the very greedlest of gudgeons.

A correspondent of the Pall Mail Gazette reports an amusing effort of the recently-appointed director of the operahouse in Vienna, in the way of theatrical reform. His original intention was to do away with the clacque and with the prompter's box seen in this country only on the grand-opera stage, but hideously prominent on every continental stage. He seems to have been successful with the clacque, but the actors generally declare that they cannot do without the prompter's box.

Williams and Walker, the Los Angeles darkies who swooped down on the vaudeville stage a couple of years ago and made a big hit all the way from this metropolis to London, are to appear next season in a play which will be known as "In a Policy Shop; or 4-11-44." The authorship of the piece has been attributed to Edward Harrigan, but Theatrical Topics says it is from the pen of an author of several successes on Broadway, but he prefers to keep in the background until after its production.

It is astonishing that a clever man like James A. Herne should do such a thing, but he as done it, and now everybody can store up against the days that are sure to come the exact year which gave to the world charming Maude Adams. Mr. Herne got reminiscent the other day and told that twenty-three years ago he was presenting his play. "Hearts of Oak" in San Francisco with Mrs. Annie Adams in the cast. They have a child in a cradle on the stage in one of the scenes of "Hearts of Cak" and Mrs. Adams brought Marrie into the Theater for this purpose when she was just reaching I year of age. She is 24 now and there will be many to wish that her age might remain unchanged as long as she so aptly gives her services to the stage.

The trail of the serpent crosses the lives of two friends, one whose mistress she has been, and the other whose wife she becomes. Her husband's fortune failing, she promises to do him a kindness, which she does by eloping with a cynical plutocrat who cheftshes no delusions concerning love. A powerful climax is reached in the fourth act, when her former paramour attempts to throttle her to save the husband from the shame and grief of her elopement, and is discovered by the husband, to whom the wife accuses her assailant of attempting to wrong her. tempting to wrong her [Kansas City Star:] It sometimes pays a theatrical manager to have in advance of his offering a man whose interest in life extends beyond the narrow horizon of the theater and its afinterest in fire extens beyond the hair row horizon of the theater and its affairs. An enterprising young man—redheaded young men are generally enterprising—of this kind has signalized his week's sojourn here by naving himself and the attraction he represents mentioned in connection with two of the most interesting and important stories which were in the news of the week. He first 'got in' on the yellow-fever scare in the South, and, when the announcement came that Henry George had died so suddenly, he scored again. His name is Robert D. Ward, and he represents "The Girl from Paris." He will probably have hard work 'explaining to his manager how it was that he missed an interview on the latest addition to the Cleveland family. He might at least have wired his congratulations and showed a copy of the telegram to the newspapers.

In "Too Much Johnson," when Billings arrives at the planter's place in Cuba, he naturally takes, a good look at the room in which he will have to make himself very much at home in a few-minutes. Mr. Gillette said: "I used to examine the visible walls first very carefully, and make the audience understand exactly what I was doing—that I was taking a mental inventory of everything in sight. Then I would gaze steadfastly at one point and another in the first balcony, making a sweep with my eyes of the whole half circle. I found that I had to do this very quickly and with my mind concentrated on the imaginary scene before me or the audience would be certain to misinterpret my meaning. One night, I suppose, I must have forgotten myself an kept my eyes fastened upon one spot in the imaginary wall too long, for I got a letter next day—or rather, my manager did—from a gentleman who couldn't spell very well, and wrote with his elbow, I should judge. His meaning was plain, however, He said that if he got a chance he'd blow the top of my head off for staring his wife out of countenance. Later he called at the box office and was dissuaded from carrying out his Later he called at the box office Later he called at the box office and was dissuaded from carrying out his purpose by my manager, who made him understand after three rounds of drinks, the theory of the fourth side of the stage, and my innocent intentions ds the prevaricating Billings." How many people are there nowadays who realize that this is the key-note of the advance in the art of action? The old-timer always insisted on playing to his audience, not for them.

It is a safe statement to make that there was never a new theory advanced, a fresh discovery reported, an untried remedy suggested for an old disorder that somebody didn't appear in print, or in some public way announce his persuasion that the new thing was a fraud. Perhaps many of those who take quick exceptions to new-born postulates or dare not travel in ununtrodden lanes are of the gentle, timid kind who fear some harm or disturbance may come to their enjoyment of former ruts; there is a large number, however, who will not take to a new faith, not that they are sincere skeptics, but because they are born cavillers-they are critics because it is good form with many to find fault-they are, to use a slang phrase, "kickers," either from prejudice against any innovation or change, or forsooth from a jealousy of the success of a courageous leader or a painstakeng inventor-they are bound to knock out anybody who, in the arena of public opinion, dares to differ with the usual verdict, or make a dollar in a venture out of the ordinary line.

Dr. Keeley was by no means the first to pronounce drinking a disease. Long before this student of human nature had advanced medical measures for the drunkard's reclaim, others had been working with the same lens and reaching a similar conclusion. To Dr. Keeley belongs the honor of first fastening the attention of the public to this, the true help to reform, viz: an in-telligent adoption of certain medical agents to repair broken down constitutions and to rehabilitate a healthy appetite. Naturally his successful treatment of cases that were regarded hopeless and probably had tried the old method—moral suasion—with abject failure, gave to his method a reputation, and it wasn't long ere hundreds were wending their way to Dwight to be cured of the liquor habit.

And it is as an aid to obtaining this important knowledge that the book here. The passion of a God imprisoned there.

And it is as an aid to obtaining this important knowledge that the book before us has been written. The different emotions which move us, and which exogt their influence upon the mind, molding and ferming it into beauty and happiness, or perverting the stirit and the higher tendencies of heing, are clearly set forth. The object of the work is, to point out the way to secure that most desirable of all ends, happiness, and to call attention "to uses of thought and habits of action, that made for happiness in some persons in some for happiness in some persons in some for the work of the work can be work of the work of the work can be work of the work of the work can be work of the work work of the work is the work is to be work of the work in the work of the work is to be work of the work in the work of the work is to be work of the work in the work of the work is to be work of the work is to be work of the work in the work of the work is to be work of the work in the work is to be work of the work in the work is to be work of the work in the work is to be work in the work in the work is to be work in the work in the work is to be work in the work in the work is to be work in the work in the work in the work is to be work in the work in entirely unknown to others as well fitted to enjoy them."

Another prominent object of the aueliminate the element of fear from the soul. The term "fearthought" is an expression "coined by the author in order, if possible by suggestion, to separate from divinely ordained forethought any element of apprehension or weakness that might be masquerading under the name of forethought in the minds of the unthinking." He shows very clearly the influence of fear upon the mind in producing disease, and reiterates the fact which has been so frequently observed, "that epidemics owe a great deal of their rapid extension and violence to the panic of fear which exists among the people." Again, he asserts that "the mind of man is constantly at work, silently perman is constantly at work, silently permans in the silently perman is constantly at work, silently perman is constantly at work, silently permans in the silently perman is constantly at work, silently permans in the silently permans in the silently permans in the silently permans in the silently permans the soul. The term "fearthought" is an exvital influence, repeating itself in every function, throbbing in the heart, breathing in the lungs, reflecting itself every act of nutrition, realizing its own life in every sensation, realizing is own life in every sensation, and working its own will in every motion. The power of the mind over the body, indeed! There is no power in the body, but in the mind, for the body is the mind, translated into flesh and blood."

mind, translated into flesh and blood."
The work is one fraught with intense conviction, and filled with much that is new, and with wise suggestions, the truth of which the scientific world stands ready to concede. But the author makes plain the wide distinction existing between forethought and fearthought, and the necessity of elminating the latter from our lives if we would secure the happiness which it was intended that man should enjoy in this life. Summoning the matter up, he says:

"Education can do much, but it is useless to expect the total eradication of fear without the aid and guidance of the religious principle. Fear is the cry of the wounded self-hood for something he has suffered or lost, icr is about to lose. Perfect love casteth out fear; the perfect love of God and thet neighor. He who is in bondage to the senses has everything to dread. thet neghor. He who is in bondage to the senses has everything to dread. He alone is free from all apprehen-sions whose heart and mind are stayed upon the living God. He truly sits un-der his own vine and fig tree, with none to make him afraid."

James. [Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co.]
The accuracy, the cleverness and the insight of this latest mental study of Henry James's is not to be for a moment questioned, yet granting its fidelity to life, or to those unpleasant phases of it in which the divorce court is wont to dabble, one still hesitates to commend anything so thoroughly unpleasant as the history of the dreadful, dismal. deplorable little Maisie. The American divorce laws have had hard commend anything so thoroughly unpleasant as the history of the dreadful, dismal, deplorable little Maisie. The American divorce laws have had hard things said and written of them deservedly, and our English friends in particular have made rich copy of the infelicity of which these somewhat lax laws are productive. It is somewhat surprising that English critics do not resent this return thrust of Mr. James, for "Maisie" is as severe a commentary on the English method of adjusting unhappiness as anything ever written to satirize. Mr. James's own country, London, however, takes "Maisie" to its heart at once, and waxes fairly rhapsodical in its praise. The book is a very naked setting forth of unpleasant facts, baring to inspection at the same time a set of unlovely and distorted souls, which, between them, with all their ability to pervert good things, are powerless to corrupt the curious little child who, tossed back and forth among a bewildering superfluity of parents and step-parents, becomes only a wise and discreet little enigma whom none can solve. Mr. James preaches no sermon in his book, nor is one necessary, for the moral is easily found without a pointing hand.

Perhaps the art of the book is in its systematic refraining from comment on the barren and hideous facts which make a long array in Maisie's little life, yet one weakly wishes for a little softening of the nakedness of it all, childish as one knows to be the longing for a sugar coating. The gist of the book is not in the adventures that health therein, not in the flittings of Maisie from one hard, unconcerned parent to another, nor in her curious relationship to her two step-parents, but in the effect of all these upon the child's mind. It is undoubtedly a great study, but no less certainly not a work of art, though it is heresy to proclaim it thus in the face of the devoted worship of Mr. James's followers.

Literary Comment.

A EULOGY OF SIR WALTER SCOTT N THIS period of rather skept treatment of the large, free style of Sir Walter Scott, it is worth while to notice the different estimate set on his work by Prof. George Saintsbury, in the biography written for the "Fanous Scots" series:

nest miniaturists of work, who reprint every stroke a hundred times, adjust every detail of compositions over an over again, and can never have done with rehandling and perfecting. Nor did he belong to that very rare class whose work seems to be, at any rate after a slight apprenticeship, faultless from the first, to whom inelegancies of style times are the same and the same are the same did he belong to that very rare class whose work seems to be, at any rate after a slight apprenticeship, faultless from the first, to whom inelegancies of style, incorrect rhymes, licenses of meter—not deliberate and intended to produce the effect they achieve, but the effect of carelessness or of momentary inability to do what is wanted—are by nature or education impossible. His nature did not give him this endowment, and his education was of the very last sort to procure it for him. He himself, not out of pique or conceit, things utterly alien from his nature, still less out of laziness, but, as I believe, what is a genuine and, what is more, a correct self-criticism, has left in his private writings repeated expressions of his belief that, revision and correction in his case not only did not improve the work, but were in most cases likely to do it positive harm; that the spoon was made or the horn spoiled (to adopt his country proverb) at the first draft, and once for all. I think this was a correct judgment, and I do not see that it implies any inferiority on his part. It is not as if he ever aimed at the methods of the precisions and failed, as if it was his desire to be a correct writer, a careful observer of proportion and construction, a producer of artful felicities in meter, hythm, rhymes, phrase. We may yield to no one in the delight of tracing the exact correspondence of strophe and antistrophe in a Greek chorus, the subtle vowel music. of a Latin hymn or a passage of Rossetti's. But I cannot see, why, because we rejoice in these things, we should demand them of all poetry, or why, because we rejoice in the subtle vowel music. of a Latin hymn of the exquisite finish of Jane Austen as novelist, we should deeplies the looser handling and more sweeping touch of Scott in prose. It is extremely probable that, as Mr. Balfour suggested the other day in unveiling the Westminster Abbey monument, this breadth of touch obtained him popularity abroad, nor need it impair his fame at home."

MISTAKES IN THE USE OF NE MISTAKES IN THE USE OF NE-GRO DIALECT. A southern corre-spondent of the New York Evening Post writes an interesting letter on ne-gro dialect, in which he takes a num-ber of writers to task for their lack of idlom?

ber of writers to task for their lack of idiom?

"I find notes on a novel published in 1881 and written by Maurice Thompson, called 'A Tallahassee Girl,' which struck me as furnishing some pretty good examples of the kind of negro dialect that set me to thinking. Somewhere in the book he makes an old colored woman say of a wedding 'de ceremony's 'bout ter begin.' I thought that very good. But the chances are that she said, 'Hit's 'bout ter begin.' No people have the faculty of putting things shorter than the plantation negroes of the South. The town negro gets an inkiling of such words as 'ceremony' and uses them in place and out of place; but the old-fashioned country darky makes 'hit' serve for everything from the day of judgment to the rheumatism. I met an old fellow on the morning after the great earthquake in 1885 and he asked, 'Hit skeer you last night, boss?'

these articles Mr. Ralph gives snatches of negro conversation, more by way of adding local color than anything else;
for he makes no pretense, of course, to being a dialect writer. But he is a well-trained newspaper man and aclose observer, and his mistakes show how hard it is for one not born and bred to the dialect to grapple with itssubtle shades and half-shades. Mr.
Ralph makes a negro barber say, "Ef
I doan hab no stool." He should have made him say, Ef I ain' got no stool, and the words 'ain' and 'got' should be elided and pronounced almost as though it was 'aingot.' And then he makes this same negro barber say, 'Ef I got reduced so I had to do manual labor, I'd go to stealin' 'fo' I'd be a rooster'

the 'Uncle Remus' type would have

POEMS BY GEORGE MEREDITH.
Admirers of the novelist who above all other English writers of the present day appeals largely to a cult will accept this volume of "Selected Poems," issued by Charles Scribner's Sons, as a fresh proof of his genius. Lest some who have been frightened from his novels by enigmatical sentences hesitate to venture upon his publications in verse, it is well to say that there are but few of the pecularities which distinguish his prose works to be found in these easy-flowing, exquisite lines. A master of language, meter and rhythm have lent him aid rather than findered him in description. Where can be found a more complete picture than in these nine words taken from the poem, "The Lark Ascending:"

Where ripole ripole overcuris POEMS BY GEORGE MEREDITH Lark Ascending:"
Where ripple ripple overcurls
And eddy into eddy whiris,

And eddy into eddy whirts,

The comparison is between the notes of the lark and the woodland waters. The entire poem deserves to be placed in juxtaposition with Shelley's immortal lines, "Love in the Valley" introduces human character with as swift and true a pen as that which records the keen observation of inanimate nature. The four lines here quoted might serve as a summary of half the heroines of fiction:

she won! The poems are not all pastoral. Some The poems are not all pastoral. Some are drawn from mythology, others from history, and medieval legend. A grewsome tale is that contained in "The Song of Theodolinda," for it tells of the penance of the queen who takes from the anvil of brown-cowled smiths a "traitor nail" (from the true cross) and while it is at white heat, brands herself upon the breast, uttering self-reproaches because "the reptile" wi hin her shrinks from the pain. "The Young Princess" is a ballad of old laws of love, and is perhaps the most dramatic in the collection. "Juggling Jerry" is of the sentimental nawative order made familiar by G. R. Sims. Online redeems it from the commonplace:

Nature allows us to bait for the fool.

The gem of the book, however is "The Old Chartist." It is a soliloquy of a man just returned from Australia, wither he has been transported for complicity in the Chartis riots. In spite of his discontent with the prevailing order of things, and of the punishment which his country inflicted upon him, he is irresistibly drawn back to the old home. This is how he addresses the brook:
Your dear old brook, that from his grace's park park Come bounding! on you run near my old town!

My lord can't look the water; nor the lark,
Unless he kills him, can my lord keep down.

His wife and daughter had both warned him agains daughter had both warned him agains seditious language, but he, nevertheless, is determined to rouse the peoplagain, at the first opportunity. While such thoughts come to him he sees a water rat performing his toilet by the mirror of the stream. The fellow is a dandy, and the incongruity of his daintiness and his known occupations and surroundings so impresses the radical philosopher that after recalling how good his wife was to him when he was in disgrace, even though she had no sympathy with the Chartist cause, that he recognizes here may be some sense in respectability after all, and thus addresses the unconscious instrument of his conversion:

While literature certainly pays mar-

self.

While literature certainly pays marvelously well in England, literary men do occasionally go outside of literature to make money. A case in point is that of George R. Sims, who, though hardly a man of letters, is certainly a proline and popular writer. It seems that Mr. Sims was once bald, and now he is not. The concoction used by him to restore his hair was made from a recipe which he possesses. The restorecipe which he possesses. The

to resture his hair was made from a recipe which he possesses. The restoration was so marvelous that he has organized a company and is putting his noistrum on the market. The novelty of a writer becoming a patent-medicine man has attracted wide attention in England, and given Mr. Sims more advertising than hecould get by any other means, so that he now stands a chance of making more money than he has ever made out of literature.

Miss Braddon has again determined to show her skill in the revived historical romance, of which her "London Pride" was a successful example. Her new story is named "in High Places," and deals with the court life of Charles II in France and later in England. It is the first serial story, to appear in the Lady's Realm, and an "installment of some 20,000 words—about £200 worth—will appear in the November number. Yes, I was in Nottingham for a year and liked it well, though I was known to scarce any one. If you ever met an uncount stranger wandering in the dark around the castle, ten or twelve years ago, his appearance unimpressive, a book in each pocket and his thoughts 300 miles due north, it might have been the subject of your lecture." This recalls to an English commentator another anecdote of Mr. Barrie. "I am always at Thrums," he said, "except when the papers say I am."

Inexperience in buying clothing is a bad thing. You want clothing that suits you and you should have it. You may economize by buying a cheap "misfit" suit, but you are never pleased with it. It won't fit, it are never pleased with it. O. C. SEN , Men's Tailor,

Moisting Slow Senators.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Col. Dick with this he turned on his heels and went into the Senate chamber.

SMITH D. FRY. Bright, sergeant-at-arms of the Sen-ate, has been doing a very commenda-ble work since the Congress adjourned. hie work since the Congress adjourned.
At that time, and for years previously, the Capitol corridors had been dingy and they had gradually become disgracefully dirty. The unkempt condition of the splendid building was so shamefully apparent that a newspaper man last summer wrote a vigorous description of the place; and the article aused considerable comment in Wash-

Capitol is not clean. It is spick-span brand new, and it makes one feel proud of his country to see it. All of the walls and ceilings on the main floor been scraped, scrubbed, dusted, and artistically painted. This cleanly condition is especially noticeable in the Senate wing of the Capitol, where painters and decorators are still at put in, and that is an improvement which has long been needed. Never-theless, to those who know the Senate, and have acquaintance with Senators, there is something startling in the ancuncement that there is to be a fast evator in the Senate wing of the Cap-

It is almost as startling as it would be to say that they are going to have new rules and practices in the Senate. It is an innovation upon the time-honred slowness of things Senatorial

The elevator to be replaced has been in use for many years. It was the first put in the Capitol, and is the one designed exclusively for Senators; and during the sessions of the Senate none but Senators and newspaper corre-spondents use it. It has been slower spondents use it. It has been slower than justice in equity; even slower than the Senate in legislation. In all these years it has never been improved upon, because its slowness suited the Senate. It corresponded to the temperament of the dignified statesmen who have been raised by it deliberately from one floor to another. Its removal marks an epoch in the history of the Senate—the punctuation point to close a period.

Happits, to all even to the eccentric requirements of our Senators. The new elevator will respond to a whim. By touching one electric button it can be made to go slow enough to rival its predecessor. By touching another it the rate of 200 feet per minute. Adream will be realized. When a Senator in the basement sounds a call, the elevator may drop instantly from the gallery and land gently at his feet, like the control of the same to sounds a call, the fits prey. Then it can holst him as slowly and deliberately as his fancy directs. The only trouble will arise when a slow Senator and a fast Senator get on together, or when a slow Senator may be showly and deliberately as his fancy in peal is sounded on another flow. These things may lead to some confusion and alltide irritation.

Thinking of the peculiar whimsical ness of Senators, recalls an incident in the was one of the most sensitive, punctilious and dictatorial of men. He would bristle up like a porcupine in minute. THE GUELPH FUND.

Report That Emperor William Has Squandered It.

[Buffalo Commercial:] The following dispatch from Berlin was published a few days ago in several American newspapers:

dispatch from Bernn was published a few days ago in several American newspapers:

"An immense sensation has been created here, also in the various German capitals and at Vienna, by the announcement, on most reliable zuthority, of the fact that Emperor William has appropriated and squandered in personal extravagance what has until now been known as the Guelph fund, amounting to $15,000,000."

This bit of political gossip, if well founded, might well make talk in European capitals and afford the watchful critics of the Emperor William material for fresh attacks, veiled in Germany, open in other countries. Whether it is true or merely one of the sensational stories made up of a grain of truth to a pound of malicious exaggeration, it does not particularly concern American readers. It is one of those stories that decidedly need confirmation. But it is well to note the scandal in passing, and also to recall the facts about the famous "Guelph"

IP you ever read Carlyle's "Sarfor Resartus?" And did you ever attend the New York Horse Show?

If you have done both, you know that "Sartor, Resartus" is a book about clothes, jostensibly, but really about nearly everything else that the mind of man can think of. You know, too, that while the horse show is gotten up ostensibly for the exhibition of equine beauties, its success depends more upon the sort of clothes worn by the visitors than upon anything else. And perhaps you will agree with the writer that, while "Sartor Resartus" is a great greater still had its distinguished author lived in these times and been able

On Monday the attendance will be ther lived in these times and been able to attend the New York Horse Show one year. For he delighted in studying tuman nature more than anything else, and there is no place in the world where human nature displays itself in

HOW SUCCESS IS MEASURED.

It won't be possible to say whether the horse show of 1897, which will be opened at the Madison Square Garden on Monday of next week, will be a success until about Wednesday. For it

those of recent years, this is how it will go:

On Monday the attendance will be rather slim and decidedly "common." Most of those present will be men and women who work for a living at least part of the time. There - will be a sprinkling of genuine lovers of horse-flesh; and the horses themselves, which are sure to be a really fine lot of animals, will absorb a good deal of attention.

On Tuesday the crowd will be dayson.

On Tuesday, too, there will probably be a sprinkling of persons of a higher social grade, but all that day the horse show managers will keep busy guessing about the attendance on Wednesday. Its character will mean something to them; and some of the more sportive among them, as well as many rank outsiders, will be offering to lay bets thereon.

tendance is so much desired, will have been debating in their minds and with their fellows as to the advisability of going on exhibition along with the horses this year as usual. If the de-cision be favorable thereto—as it probalmost as loudly as they dress. Many of the men will carry faces that show unmistakable signs of much drinking of rich wines and much feeding on table delicacies. These men will most of them raise their hats osteniatiously and with great formality when they meet the showy women.

WEDNESDAY WILL DECIDE IT. On Tuesday, too, there will probably be a sprinkling, of persons of a higher social grade, but all that day the horse show managers will keep busy guessing about the attendance on Wednesday. Its character will mean something to them; and some of the more sportive among them, as well as many rank outsiders, will be offering to lay bets thereon.

In the meantime, the swells whose attendance is so much desired, will have been debating in their minds and with their fellows as to the advisability of going on exhibition along with the foreses this year as usual. If the decision be favorable thereto—as it probe anywhere on this continent by a "rank outsider."

And while you might be surprised to know that there is not a much larger percentage of beautiful women among the opulent than among any other class, you would also be surprised at the effect, in the matter of good looks, that may be produced by perfect taste in dressing.

HOW THE WOMEN DRESS. There might be some surprise, too, at the plainness of their gowns. Time was when the very rich women of this country were wont to vie with each other in the gaudiness of their attire, but that time has long since passed away. The correct thing now, especially at the horse show, is to dress simply. But the dressing must be elegant? Oh yes. If you are a man you mightn't understand it, were you to make a crit-ical survey of the boxes of the Madi<sup>J</sup> son Square Garden when it is jammed to the doors by a horse show crowd— but your wife would.

that it cut him short right in the middle of a sentence.

"You don't know what you're talking about, John," she said, indignantly, "Why, the outfit that woman has on cost more than all my gowns for a whole year. See how her gown fits! It was made by a 'modiste,' not an ordinary 'dressmaker,' and its material, which you seem to think cheap just because it's plain, cost a mint of money. Why, John, if you ever get rich enough so I can' dress like that—"

But John begged her to quit. He couldn't see why she should be proclaiming to every one in the vicinity that he had not yet found his "pile."

"You musn't infer from all this, however, that the boxes present a colorless look when filled with a typical horse-show crowd. No, indeed! There's plenty of color, and it is mainly furnished by the faces of the women.

But don't jump at the conclusion that the fine women in the boxes use much fine, but it will be the exception and not the rule, for "Society" with a big "S" frowns on rouge as severely as it does upon over-showiness in dress. Journey Through the Grand Canyon

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.] NUMBER of old soldiers and miners were recently discussing "dar-ing deeds," when Capt. A., who some time had been listening in si-e, coughed behind his brown hand and said.

"Of course, there is a certain moral quality about a brave deed, called out in defense of others, but I maintain that courage equally admirable has been shown by the instinctive impulse of self-preservation. You all know the case of James White of Iowa, the first man who ever passed through the Grand Cañon of the Colorado of the West?"

thing of the mighty gorge known as the "Grand Colorado Cañon," but they expressed a desire to learn of James White, of whom they had never heard. Capt. A. knocked the ashes from his pipe, looked thoughtfully up at the ceiling and began in this way:

"A few years after our civil waf, Capt. Baker, who had won his title in the Confederate army, induced James White and a young German named Henry Strole, to go on a prospecting tour with him to the then uninhabited and but little known San Juan country in Southwestern Colorado.

"Baker had been a gold hunter before the war. He was a natural leader, and inspired his companions with his own confidence. With a Mexican burro to carry their mining outfit, the three men started to find fortune in the gulches of the San Juan, where at that time there was not a white man, but the hostile Navajos were strongly in evidence.

the hostile Navajos were strongly in evidence.

"After weeks of privation the prospectors reached the promised land, to the west of the Sierra Madre. They at once went to work, and rich gold finds confirmed Baker's judgment.

"The men worked for nearly a month with great success, and were beginning to feel that the Indians would not sthen them, when just before daylight ne August morning they were startled from sleep by the thunder of rocks from the cliffs above and the shrill yells of the savages. They seized their arms, and while waiting for the light to come into the canon where they were in camp, they placed all their belongings on the burro, so as to be ready for flight.

iongings on the burro, so as to be ready for flight.

"With dawn they saw the Navajos on both sides of the deep gulch, but the horror of the situation was increased when Capt. Baker fell on his face with a bullet through his brain.

"White and Strole saw that their only chance for escape was to make their way down the cafion to the west. They took the heavily-laden burro along, the Indians following and hurlingt rocks from the cliffs. About the middle of the afternoon they came to the Cafion of the San Juan, where the water flowed from bank to bank.

"They made a raft of driftwood which they found lodged in the cleft of the rocks, using their ropes to, fasten the logs. They had to abandon the donkey, but they leaded all their food and arms, not forgetting, the gold dust, on the raft.

not forgetting the gold dust, on the raft.

"A more desperate situation it would be difficult to imagine. Here these men were, at the bottom of a great canon, flowing through a trackless waste, and through a region at that time unexplored, and but little known even to this day; but their ignorance of the situation gave them irrength and hope.

"The raft drifted down with the current, the black walls rising higher on either hand, till at last it seemed as if the far-off tops were comling together and must fall in and crush them. Night and day they kept on till four days had passed, when the raft was swept into a deeper and vaster chasm. This was the canon of the great Colorade.

"Two more days and nights passed, when the smooth current became swifter, and they saw the white foam of rapids ahead.

swifter, and they saw the white foam of rapids ahead.
"Strole, who had been guiding the raft with a pole, stood up against the advice of his companion. He tried to use the pole as the raft plunged into the rapids. Too late Strole saw his error. The ropes parted. The raft spread out like a fan. White, who was clinging to the logs, heard an awful cry, and, looking through the cloud of spray, he saw the young German sinking out of sight in the maddened waters.

When these rapids were passed, White succeeded in making a landing, and securing the raft to the narrow strip of shore. The food, the arms, the mining tools were gone, but the buckskin bag full of gold was still fast to face, hands and feet, yet he never gave up, though it seemed that the towering walls would never end.

"It was now that the hero in White's nature asserted itself. Alone, without food, at the bottom of a cafnon in the heart of a vast desert, with unknown dangers ahead, and no idea of where the mighty gorge ended, and no knowl-edge of the abodes of the nearest whites, yet this man did not despair. He thought of his mother and trusted in God.

"At length, and after he had been fiteen days in the canon's depth, white's reason, tottered, and he lay helplessly and hopelessly on the raft.

"How long he remained unconscious white did not know; he could only recall that he no longer suffered, for he had lost his love of life and his fear of death.

had lost his love of life and his real death.

"Just seventeen days from the time he started on his forced voyage, White heard the splash of oars and encouraging cheers. He was too weak to raise his head. In a short time he saw many bearded faces looking down on him in pity. He had passed through the great canon, and had drifted to Callville, a Mormon settlement at the mouth of the Virgin River.

"White weighed in health 180 pounds; he weighed less than ninety when he anished the most wonderful trip in the records of adventure and daring."

THE MINE MULE.

The armor worn by war elephants during the time of the old Mogul empire was often magnificent, being a mass of steel, iron and silver. To the long white tusks, which were covered with chains, were lashed sharp swords or sabers, forming an armament well calculated to demoralize an opposing force. The Sultan Mamood equipped his cleribatts, with hastions which

He thought of his mother and trusted in God. Morning of the day following Strole's death. White repaired his craft and pushed into the treacherous current. The sun looked into those profound depths for but one hour in the gathering shadows. Now and then the gathering shadows. On went the raft, with no living thing in sight, for these profound depths were never stirred by the wings of bird, and hitherto no human being had ever gone through them and lived to tell the tale.

"White had gold, but no food. For forty-eight hours he stood the hunger without great suffering, but after that the torture caused by want of food was incessant. It would be hard to find a more peaceable, orderly and quiet member of the feathered community than the carrier pigeon. It is his affectionate disposition and the strong love of home that takes him back to it from the greatest distances, which makes the carrier pigeon such a remarkable and attractive bird. Yet these same qualities have caused him to be enlisted as a regular member of the military service in at least two European countries. In France, where the problem of communication in time of war has received more attention perhaps than anywhere else, every important military post has more attention perhaps than anywhere else, every important military post has its dove cote, and the training of the pigeons to carry messages between distant posts is a recognized branch of military work. The rearing and training of the birds have been reduced to an exact art, and the skill and speed which some of them display is marvelous.

Several attempts have been made to introduce the use of carrier pigeons in the land and naval operations of the United States. It will doubtless sur-prise most readers to learn that we ac-making an attack. From experiments carried on on board the cruisers New York and Brooklyn, and the different training ships it has been found that the carrier pigeon is the most rapid and useful messenger that can be employed between land and sea. Lieut, Smith, U.S.N., who has given considerable attention to the subject, said of the pigeon-messenger service recently: "We are so accustomed to relying on mechanical means of sending information nowadays that we are apt to lock upon the use of birds as belonging to a less ingenious age and too slow for present purposes. As a matter of fact, the carrier piegon can outstrip the mail under ordinary conditions, and for short distances is faster than the telegraph, when the time consumed in the delivery of the message is taken into account. At sea, where the ordinary means of communication are cut off, they are the only quick and reliable messengers. A well-trained pigeon can always be counted on to make thirty miles an hour for seven or eight hours at a stretch. Two years ago when a couple-of-birds were released from the New York, 300 miles out. at noon, they arrived at home a little after 6 o'clock on the same day, having made nearly fifty miles an hour throughout the afternoon.

"One objection that has been raised to the use of pigeons on board ship is that, from the fact of the vessel's moving about, the birds will lose the strong homing instifict which makes them valuable. We have found that this is not the case, for, the birds will find their way back to the ship, even when it has moved its position many miles between the time of their leaving and their return. Though we haven't had a chance to try our feathered friends in actual warfare, the men often make use of them for the sake of novelty in sending messages to their friends on shore from four hundred to five hundred miles out at sea, and they have never failed to find their way back home in safety."

In Belgium, where pigeon racing is as great a sport as horse racing is in England and America, the birds have Tears of joy came to her eyes in an instant.

Here she drew from her bosom an envelope, and by the light of a wax taper showed me the pictures of two boys in the insurgent ranks. They were her brothers. "Take a good look," she said, "because you may meet them some day, but I'm afraid I will never see them again," and the tears filled in her eyes, and for a moment choked her utterance. Poor girl! The eldest she can never see again in this world. He was killed at the siege of Guaymaro. A sudden sound came from the street without. It was the butt of the guardia civillias' musket as it struck the stone pavement near the window. Quicker than a flash the light was blown out and the sacred picture concealed. "Don't tell any one of this picture," she whispered. "It was taken in the woods' and sent to me. If the chief or police knew it we would all be arrested and thrown into prison as suspects. You don't know what awful times we are having in Cuba."

A few months later I joined Gen. Calixto Garcia in the eastern end of the island. It was just after the battle of Jijuani. The combined forces of Robi and Garcia were marching toward the Calixto River. Near the rear of the column I noticed two soldiers carrying some one wounded in a hammock. He was shot through both legs an officer told me. Riding up alongside, I dismounted and offered the sufferer a drink of cool cocoanut milk from my canteen. As the poor fellow raised himself painfully on one ellow. I saw that he was but a boy and with a strangely familiar face.

"What is your name?" I asked.

"And you have a little sister, Julia, and another Lola?"

"You know them!" he exclaimed, and the tears sprang to his eyes. "Stop!" he called to his bearers, "El Americano knows my sisters. He must have seen them since I left home. Please teil me, are they all right? Tell me everything, and I'll be well tomorrow."

they had evidently-accomplished it in some manner, and out of respect for their wonderful achievement they were allowed to remain in the home, to regain which they had suffered so much. E. W. MAYO.

St. Paul, Minn., February 16. 1893. It affords me pleasure to testify to the skill of Dr. A. F. Schiffman now located in Los Angeles, California.

As a student-when he began his dental career in my office here in 1874 - he soon gave promise of his ability since displayed, both in his association with me, and as established later in an office of his own. He succeeded in a high degree, not only in matters of general practice, but as an expert crown and bridge worker.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The voters of Los Angeles will shortly be called upon to approve the issuing of bonds for the purpose of increasing the schoolhouses in the city. In many of the schools the teachers are now overworked and have more scholars than they can properly attend to. On the other hand, there are schools which have rooms vacant, and the attendance in which might be increased very considerably from the schools in adjoining districts, provided the question were regarded in a business-like way. In the western part of town there is a school, in the oil district, which has eight rooms. It has been conducted during the past year, with care and ability, by the present corps of teachers. In an adjoining district there is a schoolhouse containing four rooms. Recently one of the rooms in the larger school was closed, the teacher transferred to the smaller house, the salaries of the teachers in the larger school decreased and the salaries of the teachers in the other school proportionately increased. The result is that only a few of the scholars were transferred to the smaller schoolhouse, and the balance were added to the teachers in the larger school, several of whom are now much over-worked. No substitutes are provided to relieve such pressure as this.

The question of appointing and discharging school teachers is one that needs a thorough investigation. Recently a number of teachers who have experience, and have been doing satisfactory work for many years, were discharged on flimsy pretexts, in order to make room for others, some of whom had far less experience. Politics. Tavoritism and money should find no place in the administration of the public schools. As long as the pub lic has reason to believe that such influences do prevail, they will be apt to think several times before voting a large amount of money for school purposes.

WHAT IS LABOR!

In listening to some of the speeches of labor agitators, and in reading some of the articles in so-called labor papers, one might suppose that the only labor in the world is that performed by men who dig in ditches. or work in factories, with their hands.

No greater mistake could be made. The average banker, railroad superintendent, manufacturer, or editor, does much harder work than the man who earns a living by the sweat of his brow for a weekly or monthly When the laboring man's day of eight hours is over, he can rest peacefully, without mental worries to disturb his sleep. On the other hand, the work of a brain worker, whose mental activity has made the employment of this labor possible, is practically never done. His cares and anxieties do not cease with the closing of the bank or factory doors or the stopping of the rumble of the press. The busy human brain cannot be stopped at a moment's notice, like the hands of a clock. Often the large employer of labor is forced to toss on a restless couch for half the night. planning and scheming how to keep his business going and his employes at work.

There is a dignity in all honest labor, and it is well occasionally to remember that there is other labor beside that which is performed with

SILVER PRODUCTION AND FREE COIN

AGE. Edward Atkinson, the statistician has made a thorough investigation of the cost of silver production by modern improved processes. He finds that about one-half of the present product of silver is the secondary product of mines of lead, copper and gold, and that silver bullion can be produced, and is produced, "at a cost of from twenty-five cents an ounce down to nothing." He also charges that "the representatives of British silver, probably covering three-quarters of the world's product, have been endeavoring, in collusion with a similar class of men in this country, to promote what is called bimetallism abroad and free coinage here." Their purpose, he declares, is to induce the farmers and the cotton-growers of this country to exchange the food, fibers and fabrics which the world must have, even though required to pay for them at gold prices, for the products of the silver mine owners (which are produced at a cost of from twenty-five cents an ounce down,) at the rate of 16 to 1, or $1.291/2 an ounce, under "an act of force, or legal tender."

The purpose of the silver mine owners and free-coinage advocates, Mr Atkinson rightly declares, can only be attained by taking away the liberty of contract-by forcing creditors to accept silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, or at $1.291/2 an ounce, which can be produced at a cost of from twenty-five cents an ounce down to nothing. Mr Atkinson closes his latest contribution to the literature of this subject as fol lows:

"This brings the issue in regard to free coinage and international bimetal-lism to a question of flat money, pure and simple. When it comes to that, why spend even twenty-five cents (25 cents,) an ounce in purchasing silver ore at market price for coinage, when tamped paper will serve the purpose stamped paper win serve the purpose of flat money better than silver, because it is less liable to be counterfeited, as silver coins are now doubtless counterfeited, by making them of cheap silver of even weight and qualcheap silver of even weight and quality with the certified coins of the government? Will this country, under such conditions, submit to an international treaty of legal tender, miscalled bimetallism, when its capacity to supply the world with the necessaries of life—food, fibers, iron, steel, copper lead and the randly increase. copper, lead, and the rapidly-increasing quantity of useful fabrics—is no longer denied? Our advantage of position, of condition, of light national taxation, our freedom from militarism, and the general aptitude and readiness of workmen to adopt all new inventions, have brought about conditions in which these necessaries of life are produced at the highest rates of impared to those of every competing country, while our products are made at the lowest cost of labor in each unit of production. We compared the gold and the world are made at the world are the world are the world and the world are the wo mand the gold reserves of the world in our annual commerce, and are no gaining the benefit of that command in adding to our own reserves. In Mr. Atkinson's opinion the free silver craze is dead, and all that remains is to bury it under a mass of facts and figures. He has contributed a good many shovelfuls of solid earth to the ceremonial of interring this "putrid reminiscence" of flatism gone mad. There will no doubt be numerous attempts to resurrect the corpse, but all attempts to galvanize it into life are likely to end in dismal failure.

LOTTERY ADVERTISING AGAIN.

In the matter of the attitude of The Times toward the business of lottery advertising, persistent misrepresentation of the course and acts of this jour nal has been indulged in by two even-ing papers—the Los Angeles Record and the Los Angeles Evening Express, and these misrepresentations have been repeated and reschool by other antagonistic, unreliable and vicious journals. The Times therefore publishes the facts and the record in the case, for the informa-tion of the public, and to refute the false and evidently malicious charges that have been made agains us. Our record is perfectly clear in this matter, and we are willing to have it known of all men; but we are not willing to have it misrepresented.

The allegation has been made that The Times discontinued the practice of advertising chance or gift scheme Association; also that this was done in compliance with an agreement between it and the other Los Angeles daily papers, and that subsequently. The Times acted in bad faith in the matter by inserting in its edition of October 31 a folder announcing a chance scheme by a local merchant. It is not charged that The Times published in its colimns any lottery advertisement or chance or gift scheme after the middle of October, the date fixed by The Times itself for discontinuing this class of advertising; but it is charged that the subsequent circulation of the folder re-ferred to was in effect a violation of our declaration in the premises.

The decisive action which this office took in the mat. ter was taken without even the knowledge, much less the "cooperation," of Its contemporaries, who did not "follow suit" until many days later. 2. The Times has never in its his tory published unmistakable lottery advertisements, such as the Louisians lottery, Mexican lottery, and that class of legally prohibited lottery schemes other Los Angeles newspaper were habitually publishing, year after year, the advertisements of the Louis iana lottery, in open violation of law The Times was uniformly and consist ntly refusing this class of advertising although it could have had it at high

The question of whether or not they were lottery schemes was only recently settled. It is e schemes, and these only, that Times advertised up to the middle of last month. It then, without compact or agreement with any of its contemporaries, without official pressure presecution, or suggestion of prosecu tion, finally removed all such adver tising from its columns, and will stand by that act.

4. The letters which are reproduced below show precisely what The Times did in this regard. Having in September last determined upon a new departure in this particular, the following letter was addressed to the United States Postoffice Inspector here:

left in person, I beg to say that I agree entirely with the position you have taken, and now confirm my promise, made to you [previously] by saying that we are already engaged in notifying merchants who have been advertising gift enterprises that such advertisements will be refused by The Times from and after October 15. We are issuing them a circular letter stating the reasons for this course, and calling their attention to the fact that the practice of advertising such schemes is bound to result in at least the innocent violation of the law by many persons, and that for this and other reasons we will take the course decided upon.

Trusting that this may be found satisfactory, and that the outcome will be better for all concerned, I remain yours truly,

These consider-ations only induced the management te admit the folder, notwithstanding the fact that no claim has ever been made that the insertion of such a folder is or was in violation of any law; nor

Among the comments, sensible and otherwise, of the English press on American political affairs, there is occasionally one which contains a suggestion that might with advantage be heeded on this side of the water. Such, for instance, as the following, from the St. James Gazette. The re marks are not true of all American politicians, but unfortunately, they are true as to many of them:

"The reason Americans allow them-"The reason Americans allow themselves to be dominated by a clique whose members would on this side of the Atlantic sooner or later find themselves in the criminal dock, is that American politicians indulge in politics solely for what they can make out of them and until America finds time to produce a class who will give their time to public affairs without expectation of pecuniary reward, Tamexpectation of pecuniary reward, Tamwill continue its victories in

The suggestion that the State University should found a school of forestry, is a good one, and ought to be carried out. Good foresters are badly needed and are not to be found. The university has absorbed the duties of the old Board of Forestry, and it is therefore proper that this work should be undertaken by the Berkeley people. In Europe forestry is a most important and dignified profession, opening a field of industry to thouands of young men. We are only beginning to recognize the great importance of forest preservation in the arid regions, but within a few years there will doubtless be a strong demand for foresters, and now is the time to be gin to educate them.

A Chicago parson has introduced full-fledged brass\band as a feature of the regular Sunday services in his church, which is of the Methodist persuasion. It is not unlikely that before many years the devotions of the Salvation Army may be regarded as quiet, conservative and decorous, in comparison with the ordinary church service. From the brass band to the minstrel troupe is not a very long step; and is it possible the ballet may vet come to be a recognized part of divine service? We have the author of David for terpsichorean exercises as a feature of religious ceremonies.

The project for a bicycle road be ween Los Angeles and Pasadena, if carried out as planned, will doubtless prove a paying investment. Such a track would be permanent, while a wooden track sun and rain.

The orator of the Farmers' Institute at San José the other day took occasion to pay his respects to yellow journalism, complaining that the San Francisco press had seen fit to notice the institution in about three lines. while something like three columns were given to exploiting a prize fight. The only wonder about this is that any one should expect the yellow newspapers to do otherwise. The prize fight is the very nub of the putrid press, and it is only when there is a 'mill' on or about to come off that the new journalist gets a chance to sling himself.

The fight that is being made against saloon in the new armory building should win; in fact, there are so many valid arguments against such an establishment, and they are so well understood, that it should not be necessary to repeat them to the Police Commission, which is made up of sensible level-headed citizens who "know a hawk from a handsaw." The young men of the National Guard should be protected against this proposed saloon 'next door" by all means, and we do not doubt the commission will see that the right thing is done in the prem-

NEW COLONIZING SCHEME.

COMMANDER BOOTH-TUCKER OF THE SALVATION ARMY EXPLAINS IT.

How the Sugar Beet Will Be Used for a Cure for Poverty-Colonies of the Poor of Great Cities Will Raise it in California. Other Big Colonies to Be Started in Colorado.

[From a Special Contributor to The Times.]

OMMANDER BOOTH-TUCKER, tables will have been planted in each the head of the Salvation Army in America, is preparing to launch a colonization scheme in this country similar to that which Gen. Booth has put into operation in England. He put into operation in England. He purposes removing the poverty-stricken residents of our great cities to unoccupled tracts of land in the West, where they can have a chance to win a living from the soil. He has given much time and thought to the practical aspects of the plan, and early in the spring the first American Salvation colony will be established in California. Booth-Tucker recently visited the site of the proposed colony, and settled the final arrangements in preparation for the coming of the pioneers. THREE MILLION POOR WHO RE-QUIRE HELP.

"This is not a charity," said the Sal-

"This is not a charity," said the Salvation commander, in explaining the new project. "It is intended as a practical way to help the helpless. It will be conducted on business principles, and we will not attempt anything that has not been tested and found to be practicable. There are, at a conservative estimate, 3,000,000 persons in this country who are always either in actual want or on the verge of starvation. This is only half the proportion that obtains in European countries, and yet think what an army of the poor it is. At the same time there are millions of acres of fertile land capable of sustaining these unfortunates in a state that At the same time there are millions of acres of fertile land capable of sustaining these unfortunates in a state that would be one of affluence compared to their present condition. The work that the Salvation Army proposes to do is simply that of an intermediary, to bring the people to the land and to give them a chance to work out their own social salvation. Of course not all of those in dire need are fit for the work we propose to offer, and not all will be accepted. No man will be permitted to become a colonist until it has been determined to a reasonable certainty that he will make the most of his chance when it is offered to him.

"Before I visited the West, I expected that most of the colonists would be drawn from the great cities east of the Mississippl, but I find that the western cities have developed so rapidly that each now has its own surplus population, and as these cities will supply the working capital for the first colonies, they naturally demand that their own poor shall receive first attention. For example, the colony which has already been provided for in Southern California will be recruited from San Francisco, where has been subsoribed $25,000 to start the undertaking."

NOT TO RECLAIM DESERTS.

NOT TO RECLAIM DESERTS.

The spot where the Salvation Army ommander will locate his first colony commander will locate his first colony is in Southern California, near the Gulf of Monterey and within sight of the famous Hotel del Monte and Coronado Beach. The colony will be within a rifle shot of Paraiesas Springs and is a veritable paradise, so far as climate and surroundings are concerned. The colonists are not to be set at the hopeless task of reclaiming a desert, for the land is most fertile and capable of yielding forty bushels of wheat to the acre. The tract comprises 500 acres, lying between the Salinas River and the Arroyo Seco, one of its tributaries. It is interesting to note that these modern soldiers of the cross will occupy the site of one of the oldest Jesuit missions in California. It was known as the Soledad Mission, and the old stone house occupied by the Jesuit fathers is still to be seen, a picturesque ruin standing near the center of the tract. An ancient irrigating ditch leads from the Arroyo across' the land, the work of these early settlers. It will be cleared out and put to use once more as soon as the colony is in operation. "My reasons for selecting this partic." s in Southern California, near the Gulf as soon as the colony is in operation "My reasons for selecting this partic ular spot for our first attempt are threefold," explained Commander Booth-Tucker, as he pointed out the advantageous location of the spot. First is the climate, which I believe to be one of the most salubrious in the world. Second, are the facilities for irrigation. The land slopes easily away from the Salinas, and there is the old ditch and the ancient pumping station, which can be refitted at small cost. Besides, there is a steamp pump close at hand, from which water can always be secured. I am a great believer in irrigation. It enables one to possess at once a maximum of sunshine and a maximum of rain, the two requirements for successful crops, and there is no doubt in my mind that in time irrigated regions will possess great advantages over those sections which dependent rainfall. The third consideration is that we shall have close at hand cash market for a crop to which the climate and soil are adapted, and which equires extensive cultivation in small

TO RAISE SUGAR BEETS. The crop to which the commander re-ferred, and which it is hoped will bring

The crop to which the commander referred, and which it is hoped will bring prosperity to the colony, is the sugar beet. The Salinas Valley already produces many tons of sugar beets, and it has been selected by Claus Spreckels as the site for his elaborate attempt to make California a great sugar-producing State. A few miles away, on the Salinas, the sugar king has a tract of 6000 acres, and directly adjoining the Soledad Mission he owns 600 acres. At Watsonville, four miles away, there is at present a beet-sugar factory, and at Soledad, only a couple of miles distant, Claus Spreckels will erect his new factory, which is intended to be the largest in the world. He will build a private railway line through the valley, to make the marketing of the crop easier, and has many other schemes for the improvement of the section. Claus Spreckels has manifested great interest in the new colony. He has contributed $1000 to the scheme, and offers the Salvationists land at a low price for the production of beets. But the promoters of the scheme prefer not to the their fortunes to that of any one crop, though they expect the sugar beet to be their staple. Commander Booth-Tucker hopes thus to benefit both the people who go to the colony and the agricultural interests of the country by aiding in the introduction of this new crop. HOW THE COLONISTS WILL LIVE. The land which the Salvationists have secured is in a rectangular block, with the county road skirting it on two sides. When the first twenty-five families go to the place next spring they will find fifty ten-acre farms laid out like the lots in a city block, fronting in a new road, which will be put through the middle of the place. On each alternate lot a small $100 cottage will be erected ready for occupancy, half the farms being left vacant at first. On each lot a small plot of alfalfa will be growing, and a few vege-The land which the Salvationists have garden.

The twenty-five families will all have

The twenty-five families will all have some knowledge of agriculture, since, according to Booth Tucker, 90 per cent. of those who applied to be taken into the scheme in San Francisco had come originally from the country. As only half of them had any money at all, it is safe to surmise that they will still be practically destitute when they are put on the land. "We will not lend to the individual settlers," says Commander Booth-Tucker, "but we shall form them into a mutual association like the Knyphausen societies in Germany, and shall lend to the whole twenty-five on their joint securities. They will then lend to each other on notes of hand. The result will be that they will watch each other, and each man will have to make the best use of the money hencify the summer of the will not long enjoy the benefits of the association.

REGIMENTS OF THE POOR.

REGIMENTS OF THE POOR. "In time," said the commander, his eyes kindling, "I hope to be able to march the poor out of our great cities in regiments, 1900 at a time, and settle in regiments, 1900 at a time, and settle them on the land, where they can obtain a decent living by hard work and bring up their children away from vicious city surroundings. This will be a benefit both to the city and the country. We do not propose to support any settlers in idleness, and we shall be careful to sift out the scamps and scalawags so far as we can. It is the 'poor but honest' we are striving to help by this plan. It is the greatest project of poor relief that has been attempted, and its consummation will add 100 per cent. to the happiness and prosperity of the country." If this colony is a success, others of similar nature will be started in Colorado and neighboring States.

Assassin Ebanks wantonly aggra-vates his original offense by writing for a San Diego newspaper, and there is no longer any danger that he will escape hanging. The hitching ordinance will be strictly enforced after today, and the public will do well to study its provi-sions. Those who do not may find their rigs at the Police Station. The enforcement of the ordinance may cause inconvenience to individuals, but it will certainly give the city a more metropolitan aspect and less the appearance of a cross-roads village.

Has the Navy Department, also, a gridge against San Pedro? In the pibt chart of the North Pacific ocean, which is published monthly at the Hydrographic Office of the Bureau of Navigation in Washington, giving in cdors the sailing routes, currents, channels, etc., Santa Cruz, is marked or the map, and so is Santa Barbara and so is San Diego, but San Pedro the oldest port on the Coast of Californa, is not shown at all.

The attendants at the Chamber of Ommerce believe that there must be more kleptomaniacs in existence than is usually supposed. It is no uncomnon thing to detect persons who are quite well dressed in the act of pilfering, or trying to pilfer, some of the exhibits. The line is not drawn at fult, which, of course, is quite tempting to those who are kleptomaniacally inclined. Bottles of wine have also dissppeared, and attempts have even been nade to steal portions of the hide of the walnut elephant.

The night watchman who protests hat his shots, fired to halt fugitive mall boys, could not possibly do any lamage, because he was careful to aim them at the zenith, cherishes a weird and wonderful theory of dynamics and physics. Apparently he believes that a bullet started upward either persists in its course or is dissipated into gases and never returns. If he could be stationed where a returning bullet is about to fall, a different theory might get into his head. Facilities for the entrance of the idea certainly would not be lacking.

Shock Didn't Know That he Had Injured Calvin Until a Late Hour.
Frank Calvin, a sewing machine agent, was injured in a runaway accident yesterday afternoon. He suffered a fracture of the left femur and was removed to his home, No. 357 East First street.

The accident had many peculiar features. William Shock, employed in the street department, was driving down Central avenue about 4:30 o'clock, when his team became frightened and started to run. Shock lay back in his seat, tugging at the lines and endeavoring to hold the animals. He dared not give way in order to catch a shorter grip, on the reins lest the horses take the bits and become altogether unmanageable. The angle at which he was forced to lie in order to keep a tight rein was such as to make it impossible for him to see the wagon driven by Calvin, a short distance in advance. Calvin, however, heard the approach and turned out of the way, driving nearly upon the sidewalk. For some reason the animals driven by Shock 'sweved directly into line with Calvin's wagon near Twenty-second gether unmanageable. The angle at which he was forced to lie in order to keep a tight rein was such as to make it impossible for him to see the wagon driven by Calvin, a short distance in advance. Calvin, however, heard the approach and turned out of the way, driving nearly upon the sidewalk. For some reason the animals driven by Shock swerved directly into line with Calvin's wagon near Twenty-second street. As it became evident that a collision was unavoidable, Calvin then jumped. He was knocked down by Shock's team, sustaining several abrasions and bruises, and the fracture mentioned.

Shock did not know, when his horses were stopped at Washington street by a convenient telegraph pole around which the animals tried to run, that he had injured any one. Not until an hour later when he took the horses to the stables, was he informed of the accident. He then hurried to the Police Station to report the matter.

Report had it at a late hour last night that the corner of Fourth and Spring street had been sold. It was too late to get at the facts, but it is understood that the firm of Wilde & Strong negotiated the deal. Fourth and Spring street is one of the finest corners in the city. The price could not be obtained, but it is undoubtedly the best sale made of city property for several years.

All of these cars are loaded with Washington navel oranges, and by the latter part of the week shipments will be moving freely.

The first shipments this year are just forty-eight hours ahead of the earliest shipment last season, when the Earl Fruit Company shipped à car of navels from Glendora on November 7.

The wisdom of these early shipments has been questioned more or less ever since the freeze in Florida made them advantageous, but the opponents of this trade have generally fallen in line, and are availing themselves of the strong markets that obtain prior to the holidays. Consumers understand that these earliest oranges are not fully matured, and do not expect the finest goods until after the first of the year.
From a financial standpoint these holiday shipments are of great advantage to the industry. The best average prices are obtained for them; and, in event of a frost about the first of the year, which has frequently ruined many crops, the grower is saved a goodly portion of his crop, for which he received big figures. Owing to possible frost danger these holiday shipments from Southern California will aggregate from 800 to 1000 carloads this season.

Oranges are now selling at $2.75 per box free on board cars, California, for the best grades of navels, and $2 per box is the asking price of seedlings. Florida has a number of cars in excess of her shipments last season, but the trade is healthy throughout the East, and a good holiday market is anticipated.

THE POLICE PISTOL.

Another Trial Gives Satisfactory Results.

Police Commissioner Gibbon and a marksman gave the new police revolver another test at the Athletic Club's pistol range yesterday, and satisfied himself that the weapon is accurate when pointed right. At fifty yards all the shots hit within the space that a man's body would cover, and several of them hit the bull's-eye. The Chief's method of shooting, as explained to Mr. Gibbon and the Mayor at a former trial, was not adopted, which may account for the scores made. At twenty-five yards, six shots fired by the self-cocking action in three seconds, all hit the bull's-eye well in toward the center, and the commissioner decided that no further experiments with the weapon were necessary. The revolver used in the tests is a Colt 32 caliber, double-action, a very light, neat and handy "gun" in the hands of a man who knows how to use it. The wisdom of putting into the hands of the average policeman a gun that goes off without much provocation is still questioned by some persons. Single-action pistols are preferred by men who have most use for a weapon. Police Commissioner Gibbon and a

BRIGHT COLORS.

Evening and Dancing Gowns Gay with Flowers.

Bright-hued Slips-Airy, Filmy Stuffs are Hung in Multitudinous Folds Over Silk Foundations.

ISPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.1 NEW YORK, Nov. 2, 1897.

THE characteristic features of this winter's ball dresses are the won-derful bright colors adopted in their aterials, the vast amount of gauzes and veilings employed in the draperies and the revival of flower wreaths in decoration. The popular dancing toilet debutante and one of the very inexensive ones, has an underdress of lear scarlet, watermelon pink, or vivid ale blue taffeta silk of the thinnest, est crinkling, rustling quality. One narrow ruffle of silk, having its edges pinked, is set on at the foot, and then over this gayly-colored slip falls a et or point d'esprit."

Whatever the net may be, though, ne thing is sure, the net skift must be very wide, full, gathered at the top and left with its edges cut off evenly, but unhemmed, at the bottom. Not inva-variably, however, does this veil-like p skirt extend quite from the waist top skirt extend quite from the waist line to the slippered toes. There is a marked preference shown for setting on the light overdress in the form of an oddly-shaped deep flounce, adjusted like a round overskirt or wide diagonal ruffle. The top of the ruffle is finished then with ashig puffing of net, or, more charming still, a diminishing wreath of some bright-hued flowers.

all this effort goes to prove that the ample decoration of skirts is becoming more and more the custom, and now man who aims at following the fashions at all, leaves even her simplest evening dress quite plain below the waist. If she does not use a net to veil her skirt, she sets on ruffles in all manner of ødd and pretty devices, using narrow little flutes of muslin set very close together, or she does what is equally novel and pretty devices, using narrow little flutes of muslin or chiffen.

EVENING STUFFS.

Brussels net and point d'esprit take the lead in the list of veilings, first because they are so very pretty, so much more durable than tulle and chiffon, and then, owing to the all-important fact that they are not nearly so costly as the latter. Chiffon naturally, among the exquisite Parisian creations, still holds its own and in the most lovely guises possible to limagine. The imported varieties are to be seen embroidered in tiny gold and silver roses, or the surface of every yard covered with arabesques of baby ribbon, or honton tape, gathered, and the edges fastened to the chiffon. Still another exquisite parising over should and without very deep pangs of covetousness for little less lovely and a far better investment is the Libert silk, that plays some part in nearly every bright light silk. It can be bought in very nearly every imaginable tint, and after it has done duty as an overferes for a couple of seasons it can be ripped off and utilized in trimming hats, cut into sash lengths, summer hat veils, or disposed as shoulder scarfs, etc.

READY MADE.

Thrifty shepkeepers are selling for the convenience of those who wish to freshen up old evening dresses at home, skirt patterns of the new shaded Lib skirt patterns of the new snaded Lib-erty gauze. For this purpose the wide cloudy goeds are dyed in rainbow effects, shading on one edge from the deepest poppy red to the faintest rose on the other, or from emerald green to the softest eau de nil. This exquisitely-colored material, which is woven from forty te-forty-two inches in width, is orty te-forty-two inches in width, is hen made ready for sale by being acordion pleated for immediate applica-ion to a foundation skirt and waist. the advantage of this, for by such an overdress and decorating few flowers, a most captivating little stume can be composed in the briefest time and at no extravagant outlay.
Besides plaiting, the manufacturers ade ready for sale this same silk, both shirred and gathered into round skirt bands for slipping over any suitable underdress. The shirred silk is dopted largely for the making of bodces, for filling in pouched fronts, and or the long, transparent gathered leeves, still so much the mode and so ifficult to make effective otherwise. A few years ago there was introduced rom the other side, a costly material hat was called Eugral eating and and the shading of the cut will guide fees, for filling in pouched fronts, and for the long. transparent gathered sleeves, still so much the mode and so difficult to make effective otherwise.

A few years ago there was introduced from the other side, a costly material that was called Bengal satin, and never gained half the notoriety it deserved. This season we have it reintroduced under a new name and price as Liberty satin, and its merits are fully recognized. In quality it seems as fine as the best duchess weave, while it falls in folds as soft as the Liberty silk, and is well within the means of every woman who caters shrewdly for her wardrobe. More than this, it is one of the satins very young girls as well as their mothers can wear with equal propriety.

SKIRTS AND BODICES.

Its chief adoption for the ballroom is in making skirts for wear with contrasting bodices. The skirt is in some wise decorated, and the bodice is either made all of shirred Liberty silk, or of a charming evening bengaline that deserves special mention, because it gives all the effect of a rich brocaded silk at one-fourth the ordinary price.

Instead of really wearing brocaded or even fiatly interwoven figures this silk in pearl, pink or ivory white, is stamped all the effect of a rich brocaded silk at one-fourth the ordinary price.

Instead of really wearing brocaded or even flatly interwoven figures this silk in pearl, pink or ivory white, is stamped over with bouquets of boses, knots of pink and white geraniums, or scarlet verbena. Such a flowered bengaline bodice, worm with a skirt of Liberty satin is among the illustrations given this week.

The plain skirt is garnished with nartow ruffles of cream white point d'esprit, and the bodice, bright with a crimson geranium pattern on a cream ground, is draped after a new French fashion.

the other. A girdle of satin to match the skirt forms a belt, while a noticeably pretty feature are the lace-edged scarfs of point d'esprit falling over bust and either hip from puffs of net on the shoulders. This is one of the latest methods of disposing the still popular sashes that are by no means always arranged to fall out behind.

FLORAL TRIMMINGS

Now for a word about lace and flowers. They are both lavishly used in the embellishment of ball dresses. Not a few model gowns, seen from Paris, are so velled in lace, both black and white, as to promise a return of the entire lace dress to popular use. On skirts deep round flounces are employed and on the counters are admirable imitations of chantilly and guipure, Mechlin and Maltese, at amazingly tempting prices. In the cream laces none is more worn than the make known as lier, that has all the charm of a costly applique and yet is not at all dear, some of the very richest ranging in price a good deal below $1 a yard.

Concerning the flowers, it is safe to say that every beauty of field and garden is being worn in wreaths especially and in some quaint designs for dress decoration never seen before. One of the dressmaker's pretty devices is to decorate—a white gown with foliage only, and a simple white muslin, fairly wreathed in artificial smilax, was one of the most successful gowns that ever opened a season.

A gay little frock of lier lace, draped over a skirt of figured bengaline, is sketched this week, chiefly to show the scheme of flower decoration to typical of the new designs. A wreath of pink dog roses falls over one hip and holds a tmy white floral basket, filled with the same blossons. A similar inexpensive bit of successful will be wicker work rests on the shoulder and trails of roses decorate the simple bodice.

Yet another method of flower decoration is displayed in the gown of accordion-plaited Liberty silk that shades from poppy red to rose. A wreath of poppies, graduated in size, ornaments both skirt and waist here, white, as is now the fashion, a few blooms like those on the gown are worn in the hair. Pink wisteria and creamy acacia flowers, with their graceful foliage, geraniums of every shade, layender orchids chosen in a very bright color and in a shade that sharply contrasts with the gown worn. A poppy-red velvet collar is selected for wear with a blue or green gown, and an orange satin one with a lavender or black costume, for, especially with young girls, this brilliant touch at the throat takes the place of any jewels.

The mode of coloring is simplified and much improved with the advance in this work, and the demand is for a better class of designs than formerly were placed before the public, they being for the most part decidedly crude and inputible.

Here is a conventional design for decorating a set of plates; either breakfast, soup, dinner, dessert or fruit plates, and a design for decorating a tray. The design for plates can be easily painted by an inexperienced person, and it requires simple tinting and the shading of the cut will guide one in shading the colors from dark to light.

One desirable scheme of color is a convergence of color is a color is a color is a color in the cut will guide one in shading the colors from dark to light.

well to use a combination of greens rather than a single shade, as in nature one finds that leaves are quite varied

thus executed is much more professional in appearance, a point all china painters aim to attain.

Now that the garments of summer are finding retirement in the clothespress and trunk, sachets and pot pourri are maing retirement in the clothespress and trunk, sachets and pot pourri are much in demand. The simplest sachet of all, and one of the most attractive to those who like faint, subtle odors, will be found in a substance that frequently occurs in dentifrice—powdered orris root. This can be used, just as it is bought, without any other preparation than the making of containers. Ordinary little muslin bags, well packed with the orris root, makes sachets which, after even a week on, two, impart the mild fragrance of the violet to the put-away clothing among which they are placed.

As to the cost of orris root, it varies a little with the market, but a good article should be had for from 25 to 40 cents a pound. It depends a good deal, of course, where you buy it.

Another fragrant sachet, of greater strength, can be made by using dried layender flowers can be purchased 21 any drug store for from 30 to 40 cents a pound.

any drug store for from 30 to 40 cents a pound.

But the sachet-maker who has both these ingredients on hand can obtain still other varieties of very pleasant scents by mixing the two in various proportions. One part, by weight, of powdered orris root with two parts of dried lavender flowers will produce another delightful variety of scent. Simply reverse these proportions, and using two parts of orris root to one of lavender flowers will produce another sweet-smelling scent.

Suppose a stronger variety of violetscent is wanted than can be obtained from the orris root alone. This is easily accomplished. Take equal weights of orirs root and pulverized starch. Over the starch pour two or three drops at a time a strong extract of violets. Take care not to add enough of the extract to make the starch paste-like, or even lumpy.

Keep stirring the starch until it is thoroughly and evenly impregnated with the violet scent. Now add the orris root to the starch mixing them thoroughly, and finally passing the mixture three or four times through an ordinary patent flour sifter. As soon as this is done, either put the sachet powder into sachet bags, or into a wide-mouthed bottle and stopper it tightly. An air-tight preserving jar will answer the purpose of a wide-mouthed bottle. Remember always to keep sachets from the air until you are ready to use them for the purpose for which they are made.

The reader who likes the scent of verbena can prepare a sachet of long lasting fragrance. Save the peels of the length which come into the house.

The reader who likes the scent of verbena can prepare a sachet of long lasting fragrance. Save the peels of the lemons which come into the household. Cut the peels up in small bits and dry. When enough of dried peel has been saved to weigh half a pound, reduce it to a powder. This can be done in the ordinary kitchen coffee mill. To this add an ounce and a half of caraway seed, powdered, and mix the two well together. Over this pour a few drops at a time, a mixture of me and a half drams of oil of lemon peel and three ounces of oil of bergamot. The result will be a very dainty powder.

taste of the user. Both of these ingredients may be added in small quantities to any of the above recipes with pleasing results.

Pot pourri should be made before the season of outdoor flowers passes. Pick the most fragrant flowers in your garden, passing by all wither blossoms. Pick the flowers apart, placing the petals on plates and placing the latter where the sun can shine upon them. Let the petals thus continue to dry in the sun for several days.

Each flower may be made into pot pourri by itself or the different flowers may be mixed in any variety and proportion that pleases the maker. Flowers which have little or no scent should be left out.

When the flowers are well dried, sprinkle them with table salt. Do not omit this, as it is important. The right proportion is about two ounces of the salt to each pound of leaves. If also two ounces of powdered cris root are added and well mixed in with the dried petals, the fragrance and permanence are improved. Now the pot pourri is ready to put in the fars that are sold for that purpose. H. J. HANCOCK.

Treatment for a Red Nose.

Nothing is a greater blemish to the face of a woman than a red nose. This irritating condition may arise from various causes, one of the chief being indigestion. A habit of botting the food is very often the cause of the indigestion. Which shows itself thus. Sufferers from red noses arising from indigestion should be most careful in their diet, avoiding heating foods and hot drinks. The food should be taken slowly and each mouthful be well masticated. Sometimes a red nose is due to dryness of the nasal duct or delicacy of the capillary organs. The inflammation may then be treated as follows: Prepare a wash containing 154 grains of powdered borax, one teaspoon of eau de cologne and five ounces of soft water. First dissolve the borax in the water, and then add the eau de cologne. When the nose burns, dampen it with this lotion and let it dry on. If, when try, it still burns, repeat the treatment, Another mixture for the same trouble may be made as follows:

Dissolve thirty grains of borax in one ounce of rose water and orange water in equal parts. Wet the nose with this lotion about three times a day, letting it dry on.

When the redness of the nose arises from a kind of congestion, it should be washed in warm water only on going to bed.

A cold in the head will often produce a red and inflamed condition of the nose. A little cold cream should then be applied to the sore parts. The fol be applied to the sore parts. The following is an easily-prepared and safe recipe for cold-cream: Get half a pound of the very best lard, put it in a basin, pour on it boiling water, and, when cold drain it off. Repeat this process three times; then, after quite freeing the lard from water, beat it to a cream with a fork, and scent it with essence of bergamot.

The nostrils should never be touched with the fingers. To wash them, a little hot water should be sniffed up and then ejected.

When in doubt about the freshness of

When in doubt about the freshness of eggs they can be tested in a brine made of ten ounces of water and one of salt; put the eggs in it and the good ones will sink and the bad fibat. The best way to keep eggs fresh for winter use is to cover them with fresh lard, or with beeswax, dissolved in warm olive oil, one part wax to two of oil is the proper proportion.

Eggs with light-colored shells usually have light-colored yolkes, and often in delicate cookery there is a preference for them; in custards and yellow sponge cake, on the contrary, the darker the yolk the better. Boiled eggs (meaning, such as are cooked in the shell) are better for not being boiled at all, dropped into boiling water and set off the stove for five minutes they are more evenly cooked than when boiled, a process that means the whole or part of it must be hard if the yolk is to be cooked at all, and the flavor is more delicate, more like a poached egg. An omelet should not be salted till just as it is to be folded over in the pan; salt put in when it is beaten tourches it and keens it from rising the pan; salt put in when it is beate toughens it and keeps it from rising as much as it otherwise would.

A Bodice Too Much.

[Pearson's Weekly:] A funny little story is told of a certain lady who was one of a Saturday-to-Monday house party in a country-house recently. She took no maid with her, but on the first evening of her visit her hostess sent her own attendant to help her dress for dinner.

The toilette was almost completed, when the hostess sent for the maid. The guest said she could finish dressing alone, and the maid went away. Then the guest missed the bodice of her gown. It was nowhere to be found. Evidently it had been left behind.

The dinner hour arrived. She was keeping the others waiting. She is a woman of resource. On the bed lay a white crepe shawl. She picked it up, threw it about her shoulders, pinned it here and there, and sailed down to dinner in a toga-like garment—with the bodice of her dinner gown dangling behid her from the waistband hooks to which the maid had attached it.

Dear Sir:—In justice to you and for the benefit of others, I wish to make a statement of my case. I was afflicted with ulceration of the rectum and hemorrhage of the bowels. I was treated by two good doctors until 'I lost 32 pounds of flesh and became so weak from loss of blood that I was unable to attend to business. I then commenced doctoring with Dr. Wong Him. Bleeding stopped and I commenced to improve with the first dose of medicine, and at the end of four months I had regained my lost flesh and health, and am today well and sound. In Dr. Wong Him's honesty, integrity and ability to cure any disease that he says he can cure I have unbounded confidence and faith, and would recommend him to all needing a doctor. Yours truly, retary to give me the story. He said it was not a public matter, and it was only after my urging the above that he went on. He said:

"I doubt whether any boy who is starting life today has a worse outlook that I did. I was born in a log cabin in Medina county, Ohio. My father was a poor pioneer farmer. He was an unlucky man, and for some reason or other nothing he touched seemed to prosper. When he settled in Ohio the State was an almost unbroken wilderness. He took up a tract of woodland and cleared a portion of it, but he did not do well. Afterward he had charge of a woolen mill. This did not succeed, and he finally died when I was about 12 years old, leaving four children and nothing to support them. At times, in 1847, we had but little to eat, and I remember one dreary period when both father and mother were sick for months, in the same bed. Soon after this mother died, and it was not long before father followed her to the grave. I had a sister who was older than I, but there were two others who were younger, and I was, you know, but 12. For a time I worked for a neighbor, receiving three teacups of flour a day, and this formed the food of the family. We had a cow, and with the milk from this, we made what was called thickened milk. We had, I remember, a little corn in the house. My sister and I shelled a bag of this, and I carried it on by back to a mill nine miles away, and there traded it for meal. I walked to the mill and back. It was eighteen miles, but I do not remember that I was worn out by the trip."

SOME BUSINESS TROUBLES.

At this point Gen. Alger stopped a moment, He has, you know, made a large fortune in lumber, and I thought that from this time on the story of his career would be one of prosperity. I said: "I suppose you made a good deal of money in your lumber business, general?"

"No, I did not," was the reply. "At and soon built up such a good trade that I thought my prospects were good enough to allow me to marry. The speaker was Gen. Russell A. Alger, Secretary of War, ex-Governor of Michigan, brevet major-general of the United States army, one of the largest lumber dealers of the country. We had been chatting of success in life, and I had urged him to tell me the story of his boyhood, saying there were thousands of poor boys in the United States who were discouraged at the obstacles which they saw before as a smile swept around the corners are first one of the story of his boyhood, saying there were thousands of poor boys in the United States who were discouraged at the obstacles which they saw before

"I remember," said Secretary Alger, "I remember," said Secretary Alger, as a smile swept around the corners of his eyes, "when I first saw my name in the newspapers. It was in a description of my skill as a hay pitcher. There was a test one day as to who could unload hay the fastest, and I was one of the crack pitchers. The hay was hauled into a barn on a wagon. It had to be pitched from the wagon over the big beam. I stipulated that there should be two men to keep the hay back from the beam and went to work. I unloaded a ton of hay in less than five minutes. This was considered quite a feat and a description of it was published in the Cleveland newspapers. I can remember today how

"I taught school for two winters," replied Gen. Alger. "After that I went into the office of Wolcott & Upson at Akron, O., to study law. I had to borrow money to keep me while I was studying. After I was admitted to the bar, I went into the law office of Otis. Coffinberry & Wyman at Cleveland and soon earned enough to pay my debts. I found that the confinement of the law was injuring my health, and I looked around for something else to do. I had heard of the profits that were to be made in the lumber business in Michigan, and concluded to go there to try my fortune. A 'young man named Goddard went with me. First I found homes for my younger brother and sister, and then arranged to work for my board and clothes and for three months' schooling during the winter. I did this until I was fourteen, when my older sister died. I then thought I ought to be worth more, and I hired out to a farmer, who paid me 3 a month for the first month, 34 for the second and all work was done by hand. I was charged twelve shillings for them, and this was deducted from my wages. Not long ago one of my boys came into my office at Detroit with a bill for a dress suit. had to get up at 5 o'clock every morning to start to work. Mrs. Alger did her own cooking, and we were happy all winter long. I only got out a million and a quarter feet of logs board measure, during that winter. The next winter I had formed the copartnership of Moore & Alger, in which I had a half interest. Mr. Moore doing little more than furnishing the credit. That year we got out about 7,000,000 feet of logs, which we sold and the next year 15,000,000 feet, and from that time our lumber operations have been in quite large figures. Mr. Moore died soon after, and with some other gentlemen we formed our present concern of Alger, Smith & Co. We have for years sold as much as 150,000,000 feet of humber a year, our business amounting to something like $2,-225,000 a year."

ALGER'S BEST LUMBER INVEST-

"What was the best investment you ever, made in lumber, Gen. Alger?"

"One of the best things we ever did," said Gen. Alger, "was in the buying of a tract of pine from William E. Dodge of New York. I had examined the property and could tell to a few thousand feet just' how much pine there was on it. Mr. Dodge had an agent named Frost in Detroit. I went to him and asked him what he would take for the land. He replied that Mr. Dodge wanted $120,000 for it. I told him to telegraph an offer from me of $110,000. He did so, In a few hours a telegram came back, which read: "Tell Gen. Alger he can have the tract for $120,000, and all the time he wants to pay for it in, if he will take it now, but that if it is not taken at once, the price will be $130,000. We took it. Well, we cut 100,000,000 feet of lumber off that tract and sold it for $800,000 above the cost of lumbering. At another time we made a nice little investment by buying some canal lands of New York men. There were 1500 acres in the tracts, and the canal company had estimated that there were 10,000,000 feet of pine on them. I examined the lands, and when the man asked me $26.50 an acre for it, I accepted his proposition. The pine was of high-grade, and we cut 78,000,000 feet off of it."

THE AGE OF STEEL.

THE AGE OF STEEL: "Is there much money to be made in

"Is there much money to be made in pine lands today, general?"

"Not so much as in the past," said Gen. Alger. "The pine of Michigan and Wisconsin have been pretty well thinned out and that which is left is valued at about what it is worth. I doubt not that there are some good chances in the Southern. States and along the Pacific Coast, but the high freight rates across the continent prevent the very general use of Pacific lumber here. Canada has some lumber, but it is not as good as Michigan pine, besides wood is not used so much now as it has been in the past. The age we live in is one of iron and steel, rather than wood. Buildings are now being made of steel, fences are made of wire, and iron has taken the place of wood in a great variety of things."

THE SECRETS OF SUCCESS.

THE SECRETS OF SUCCESS. "Just one word more, general," said I, as the Secretary of War rose, "Won't you give a word of advice for the young men of today? Can you not, in a few words, say what constitute the young men of today: Can you not, in a few words, say what constitute the elements of success."

"I believe that success in life depends largely upon the man." replied Gen. Alger. "I think that will power has a great deal to do with it. If one decides that he will succeed he is pretty sure to do so, provided he devotes all his energies to it. It is the man who goes ahead, who never knows that he is whipped, who never loses confidence in himself, who succeeds. Success is the result of hard work and sticking to it. My rule is to do the thing that is before me and to do it as well as I can. There are several things, however, I would say. A man should do as he agrees, and his word should always be as good as his bond. Every man should live within his income and should try to save something. He should remember that a successful life is not a battle, but it is a long campaign, and that the contest must be kept up for years.

THE HAPPY WORKER VS. THE

"There is one thing that ought to be said concerning the hardships of the laborer," concluded Gen. Alger. "I know all about it, for no one ever worked longer hours per day and in less easy places than I. Hard work is as essential to happiness as exercise is to physical growth, and physical effort is nothing compared to mental labor in its wear or tear upon the man or woman. The pleasure of accumulation is in the battle for it, with its excitement and not in the possession of it. You seldom see a man who gives himself up to the so-called enjoyment of his wealth by spending it. A man thrives physically and mentally upon effort and occupation. When he has gotten through and says he has finished his labors he is usually taken at his word and soon to the cemetery. I have no patience with the false idea of extreme sympais usually taken at his word and soon to the cemetery. I have no patience with the false idea of extreme sympathy for the teller. Labor is man's best estate: it is the hungry mouth that grumbles with a just cause—none other—and the happiest life is the busy one."

Lay Sermons.

THE love of Christ! The world cannot fathom it, but this we know, it is vast enough to redeem the world. There was a preacher a few days since who was dealing in generalities, and he said, "We talk and think too and he said, "We talk and think too much of a personal Savior, instead of a Savior for the whole world." But I do not believe that minister was right, for if every single man received Christ as his own personal Savior it would not take long to Christianize the world. And then is not human nature so constituted that each individual seizes more honefully upon promises that he beheld them, and all his life had been spent in rayless darkness? Or how convey to the mind the sweetness of melodious song, if forever the ear had been deaf to all sound, and the life had all been passed in utter silence? It could not be done. The soul must first come in contact with these things before it can know them, and even so must it have a personal, experimental knowledge of the love of Christ before it can realize its fulness and His readiness to save, But that love of Christ is as all-abounding as the sunlight, and the redeemed soul breathes its a'mosphere and feels it warmth and tenderness. There never was a child of God who had heavier trials to bear than Moses, as the leader of a great and rebellious people. But those trials were like the chisel in the hand of the sculptor, and they were the means of developing a perfectly rounded character. And how near they brought him to God. Day by day he communed with Him, and was permitted to come into His very presence. And the Lord telked with him as a man talketh with his friend. In the pillar of cloud and of fre, and in the smoke of Sinai the Lord was with ence. And the Lord talked with him as a man talketh with his friend. In the pillar of cloud and of fire, and in the smoke of Sinai the Lord was with him, and when he came to die, alone and away from the presence of hispeople, "the Lord buried him, and no man knoweth his sepulcher unto this day."

people, The Lord buried him, and no day."

Doesn't all this show the care of our Father for those who love Him and serve Him faithfully? And He is "the same yesterday, today and forever, without the least variableness or shadow of turning."

And it is this very steadfastness of God that enables us to know just where to find Him. We never need to be in doubt. And He who saved the dying thief upon the cross-is just as ready to save me, to save you. We have but to turn to Him as did this repentant, dying sinner, to hear the voice of His forgiving love speaking in the tender accents of mercy. "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

It is this rest that we need; rest from fear and doubt; rest from weary longing; rest from loveless need and conscious guilt, and it is to this personal; waiting Savior that we must go to obtain it.

And having obtained it, how will life And naving obtained it, now will fire brighten for us, for then we shall ever remember that our Savior is at the helm, and though our ship of life may sometimes be tossed upon stormy seas, and great billows may roll over it, they shall set accomplant it, and solve shall not overwhelm it, and only a little way beyond is the blessed haven

Mr. N. F. Martin's Statement.

In January, 1892, I had a severe attack of la grippe. It was so bad that I kept my bed for several months. During this time I contracted a severe cough which refused to yield to doctors or medicines. I felt that it was a question of only a short time until I should die of consumption. In the meantime a kidney disease which had troubled me for many years became so daugerous and painful that my life was despaired of. Last spring it was certain that either my lung trouble or my kidney trouble would cause my death in a few weeks if not a few days, and I had given up all hope. My family, however, who, like myself, had heard so much about the wonderful cures of the English and German Expert Speciality, insisted to correctly that I should see these great dectors that I finally placed myself in their care. ists, insisted so earnestly that I should see these great doctors that I finally placed myself in their care. Thanks to their marvelous skill, I soon began to improve. My kidney trouble yielded quickly to their treatment and these organs are now sound and well. My cough also began to disappear and now I have no trace of consumption. Considering my advanced age and the long and strong hold these two chronic ailments, consumption and kidney disease, had upon me, I believe that in curing me the English and German Expert Specialists performed something that is almost miraculous, and more especially so since many other doctors and various kinds of patent medicines had utterly failed to accomplish, in years, what these great benefactors did in a few months. Like myself, every member of my family is very grateful to the English and German Expert Specialists for restoring me to life and health, and we all earnestly recommend them to any one in need of the aid of conscientious, painstaking and capable doctors.

THE MIDDLEMEN. The tendency of wholesale and retail business to climinate the middlemen is strikingly shown by an advertisement of Macy's New York department store, pub-lished in Printer's Ink. From this advertisement it appears that this great vertisement, it appears that this great model department store carries on the following manufacturing enterprises, American and foreign: An American shirt factory at Poughkeepsie, N. In Europe, a china factory at Limoges, France; a poreclain and table china factory in Carlsbad, Bohemia; an art pottery in Thuringia; a linen factory in Belfast, Ireland, and a glassware factory in Steinsconau, Bohemia; in all, five European factories. This big department store is, therefore, practically fourteen competing manufacturing concerns, besides being the residuary legatee, so to speak, of some hundreds of American merchauts frozen out by its competition.

The principal claim made in the advertisement is that the store leaves no profit to the middlemen. This leads a trade paper, the St. Paul Trade Journal, to come to the defense of the muchabused middlemen in the following language. There is some force in the statements advanced, yet it is difficult to see how the modern tendancy to o see how the modern tendency to certifalize business of all descriptions averted:

Who is the middleman, anyway? He he small buyer of butter, eggs, grain, stock, polatoes, fruits, etc. whose competition, where such a numerous, destroys the trol of the great concerns who make millions unjustly out of the defrauded millions unjustly out of the defrauded producer. He is the recall merchant who makes a market of the obscure hamlets, and builds them up into towns and cities, which preserve and increase the popular love of literature, culture, religion and social intercourse, learning, imitating and encouraging all that is new and useful, and building up infant industries and wealth-producing economies.

"He is the man who introduces new goods and meritorious inventions; who is a practical educator of busy men in better ways and easier methods; who keeps people thinking about new enterorises and practical improvements, and even in the humblest capacity helps to enlarge home prosperity and a wider and broader foreign trade.

"From the savage African who passes on the tusk of tvory or parcel of gold dust from the unexplored wild to the miasmatic lagoon harbors of the coast to the rich importer and broker of the great metropolis, every one of this class is to some extent an educator, a benefactor, an independent factor in the great machine of human progress and civilization. The bargain-counter policy calls for cheap fabries, sweat-shop work, a reduced number of prosperous and ambitious experts, managers and workmen: a marrowed area of the business section in every city; a smaller scope and reduced number of patrons for the learned professions and artists, and less hope for the young, who, on the threshold of life and in the prime of youthful ambition and spirit, find "No Thomography of the ways which led their fathers on from one success to another, and gave free way to those deserving the highest prosperity and honor.

"These conditions cannot fail to indirectly by the monopolies which produce them, or the political combinations which protect and serve them. No other question which today excites the apprehensions of true Americans, and those who desire the good of mankind, demands closer study, and belefand more aggressive action than this business tendency which is centralizating the real wealth-producing power of the people in the hands of a comparatively small number of great corporations and business concerns, and is RAISINS—Fancy clusters, 20-lb. boxes, 2.00; in RAISINS

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—There was some natural tendency toward recovery in prices at the opening today in view of the heavy and rather excessive drains of yesterday and of the governing movement in progress at the close of the market yesterday. There had been a recovery in prices of Americans on the London exchange before the opening here. The opening here showed declines to the New York parity, but the level was sharply above the New York level by the time the market opened here. This encouraged purchases here, and a number of stocks opened over a point higher than last night. The London market for American shares has grown so narrow, and the floating supply of stocks there is so small, that prices are easily subject to manipulation for effect on the opening trading here. There seemed ground for suspicion that this morning's rise in London was due to some such effort from this side. At all events, the rise which was thus stimulated here led to quick taking of profits, and to some further liquidation of long accounts, carrying prices below last night's level. They hardened again and eased off finally, leaving fractional net gains in the majority of cases. The decrease in surplus reserves shown by the bank statement probably induced some selling, though the change was deu in greater part to the heavy increase in deposits and the consequent raising of the legal reserve limits than to the actual decrease in cash. The large increase of loans in face of the heavy speculative accounts that have been closed out on the stock exchange during the week has seen a total loss of confidence on the part of the built operators who have been looking hopefully for the turn in the tide of reaction on the stock exchange. On Friday there was heavy liquidation of holdings and sharp declines in prices, and so far as appearances go, no buying support for stocks at any concession, however violent. The ostensible motive was fear of war with Spain on account of Cuba, intensified by the call from the Chamber of Commerce for increased force to m NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—There was ome natural tendency toward recovery

he day was over, and absurdly sensa tional rumors were put in circulation to keep prices down while shorts cov-ered. These incidents, coupled with today's recovery, are significant tech-nical indications of a culmination of a marked movement just as heavy buy-ing, irregularity of roseate views, sharp rises in prices and the stirring up of ants of the culmination of a sustained rise. The declines on the week have reached 10 points in Sugar, 5% in New Jersey Central, and 3 points or over all through the active railroads and industrial stocks. Sugar's special weakness has been due to the serious illness of the president of the company. The dethe president of the company. The decline of prices has continued now practically without interruption of any importance since the second week in September, when the culmination of the rise was reached. On Septembr 15 the average price of 20 railroad stocks was about $66.83 a share, and last night the average price of the same stocks was $57.20.

On September 10 the average price

the average price of the same stocks was $57.20.

On September 10 the average price of twelve leading industrials was $55.82 a share. Last night it was $45.73. It is an invariable rule that an upward course of prices in the market does not terminate until it has apparently exceeded itself, and reaction is a certainty, corroborated by abundant historical precedent, even in the face of continuing favorable conditions. The rise which culminated in the second week in September can be, traced to its sources in the latter part of July. There had been improvement before then, and speculation on the prospect of business revival. But the final passage of the tariff bill was accepted as clearing the industrial situation and giving settled conditions to work on. There was some reaction in some prices afterward on profit taking, but for the most part the course was steadily upward. The growth of a conviction of a bountiful harvest and of an urgent demand for our products from abroad were reflected in the bull market of that period. A comparison of prices of leading stocks ruling today with those ruling on July 24 last show interesting results. The average price of that date of twenty railroad stocks was $5.28 a share, compared with $57.90 last results. The average price of that date of twenty railroad stocks was $57.28 a share, compared with $57.90 last night for the same stocks. The price of twelve industrial stocks on July 24 was $4.92 a share, as compared with $45.73 last night. In the list of twelve industrials, only three show a variation of as much as 3 points, as between the two dates mentioned. Some few stocks, notably the coalers. Sugar, Leather preferred, Pacific Mail and Kansas Pacific preferred, have gone a little lower than they were on July 24. Generally speaking, it may be said that prices have about retraced their courses to where they were before the late marvelous incerase in traffic and earnings during that period.

Bonds have been less affected by depression during the week than stocks, but prices have shown sympathetic declines. United States old 4's registered have declined ¼ on the week.

the cotton and sugar movement St. Louis has been handling a great deal of money that usually goes to the former city, and the revival of business at New Orleans and at the centers tributary to it is regarded as encouraging on all sides. It is noteworthy that the National Park Bank, one of the institutions prominently connected with southern interests, made a large increase in its loans last week. The trend of money, however, is now largely in the direction of New York, domestic exchange having hardened perceptibly at most interior cities. The local banks are gaining in cash in consequence. The increase in deposits, in view of the expansion in loans, is entirely logical. The Pacific foreclosure payments may be expected to figure in the statement for a few weeks to come, although the result of this settlement as now arranged, ought not to disturb the money market. The settlements are more in the nature of a transfer to the treasury and again to the banks, but a short interval separating the beginning and the end of the whole affair. But since the January disbursement period intervenes, there may be a slight advance at the end of the vear. It is rather remarkable that the loans of the banks are still within five millions of dollars of the high point reached on September 18. In the same time deposits have decreased $10,000,000, and cash no less than $15,000,000."

Pinancial Cablegram.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Evening Post's London financial cablegram says: "The stock markets were idle today in view of the settlement in mines which is to commence of Monday next. Americans were about at the parity. There was no initiative here where the speculative movement is quite small, and that principally on bull accounts received for New York. Trade returns for October are ansatisfactory. Imports decreased 631,000 pounds, and exports 11, 400,000 pounds, the latter chiefly due to a falling off in exports to the United States."

Favorable Bank Statement. NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Financier says: "The bank statement for the current week is of a favorable character, no less than thirty-eight of the sixty-five clearing-house institutions having participated in a loan expansion of $48.885.300, reported. It is true that the changes of three of the larger banks account for $4,800,000 of the total inccrease, but the smaller commercial institutions figure more prominently in the aggregate than for some time past. This of itself is an encouraging symptom. The week was characterized by the revival of currency transfers to the south, New Orleans calling for a large portion of the shipments, on account of Chicago Live-stock Markets.

Every Case in the First Stage Cured.

The only rational method of treating any disease is to attack the cause. This is exactly what the WHITMAN REMEDIES AS USED AT THE KOCH MEDICAL INSTITUTE DO. A WORD OF WARNING

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20, 1897.

Dr. C. H. Whitman, Los Angeles, Cal.:

Dear Doctor — This will introduce Mr.
Waiters, who is tuburcular. I have advised him to go to Los Angeles and place himself under your care. Hereafter I shall urge all consumptive patients to go to you for treatment. My recent visit to your city and investigation of your methods has convinced me of the efficacy of your treatment, and that you are actually curing consumption. May you continue the good work. Very truly yours, N. H. HENDERSON, M. D.

Dear Dr. Whitman: Please attend to Mr.
Guthrie's case. He is tuburcular; I hope you can cure him: he is poor but honest, and will be thankful to you. Yours truly,

The assassination of Canovas by an anarchist," said Col. W. F. M. McCarthy, "may presage a general revival of revolutionary activity. I once spent a morning with the Emperor of Russia—to emphasize the real danger he was at that time laboring under from Nihilists. An anti-Nihilist device which had been highly commended to him was proven then and there, under his own eyes, in his own palace grounds, to be worse than useless."

Col. McCarthy, now a resident of New York, is in the prime of life. It is only by furtunate chance, that his friends succeeded in getting him to talk about his marvelous experiences on the Czar's personal staff at the court of Russia.

"It was in Paris," said Col. McCarthy, "that I became acquainted with an aide of the Czar Alexander. The Russians are greatly interested in applied chemistry and novel mechanical devices for warfare. I shad some ideas on these subjects which this alde asked me to put before his superiors. The Grand Duke Constantine was there and I was presented to him. "It was in Paris." said Col. McCarthy, "that I became acquainted with an aide of the Czar Alexander. The Russians are greatly interested in applied chemistry and novel mechanical devices for warfare. I had some ideas on these subjects which this aide asked me to put before his superiors. The Grand Duke Constantine was there and I was presented to him. Our interview finally led to my going to St. Petersburg, where I was presented to the Czar himself.

"I first met the Emperor in the Winter Palace one morning at 9 o'clock. He was an early riser, and the machinery of the court was all in operation by that hour. His Majesty received me kindly, and at once put me at my ease. I love Americans, he said, with a smile, and I soon learned that this was true. Hon. Andrew G. Curtin of Pennsylvania was then Minister from the United States at the imperial court, and there was nobody fin whose society the Czar took more satifaction.

"TII never forget the mysterious errand upon which I was dispatched one cold and stormy night by, and I may say, with Gen. Curtin, as he was universally called in St. Petersburg. My entry, into the Emperor's secret service had by that time become a naccomplished fact. I had become a Russian, had sworn allegiance to the Czar, spiritual and temporal, and had been entered on the official list of the chancellerie as Vasili Makroff. William F. Masom McCarthy had ceased to exist from that hour, at least in Russia. A messenger had come asking me to the American legation at 8 o'clock that evening, 'without uniform.' These words naturally excited my curiosity. I wore the imperial crown on the collar of my uniform coat, and in that dress passed at will through the streets of St. Petersburg, by day or by night. For I was supposed to be all the while on my imperial master's business.

"When I got to the embassy I learned to my intense surprise that the Minis-ter and I were to visit the Czar incog-ter and I were to visit the Czar incognito.

"Gen. Curtin had a parcel under his arm when we reached the palace, and to my amazement he was promptly admitted, without question, to the Czar's private apartments. I followed after him. The Emperor at once dismissed his attendants, gave us hearty handshakes and bade us be seated in front of a cheery coal fire in a large, comfortable-looking sitting-room. Gen. Curtin was evidently very much at home there, and from the packet under his arm he now produced a large black bottle. A servant brought lemons, cracked ice, a silver bowl containing a magnificent bunch of mint, loaf sugar, vermouth and brandy. And thereupon, in my presence, the American Minister gave the Czar lessons in the art of making mint juleps and whisky cocktalls.

THE TWO PIECES OF PAPER.

"For answer I took from my bosom the fragment of paper I had so recently received from the Emperor's hands, and to my amazement, the Chief of Police, with a smile, took from the desk in front of him the corresponding fragment and bowed me out. I had traveled full speed from the Emperor to him, yet this piece of paper which showed I had been on my master's business, had preceded me.

"Nihilism. after all, is simply the mobies' revenge. It is retailation for the freedom of the serfs, By the stroke of his pen, the Emperor' Alexander had freed 10,000,000 serfs and impoverished thousands of noble families. The nature of the Nihilism conspiracy can only be understood after some study of the conditions of Russian society at this end of the century. Every Russian youth has a career mapped out for him. Let us say that the head of a noble Russian family has four sons, whom he sends to the university. Education, first of all, they must have, to fit them for any career. A., the eldest, is destined for government services. B., the second, is to be a doctor. C., the third, shall go into the army. D., they ofyungest, does not distinguish himself in his studies and is the black sheep, as it were, of the family fold. When he does not pass his examinations his parents are incensed. When his brethren have finished their university courses and are launched into life, D. is still hanging on, drinking and dancing, dissipating his opportunities and the liberal allowance his father makes him. At last the father loses patience and gives him a round sum of money, bids him be gone, to America, to Africa, anywhere out of Russia, where he has a mistress. Assuredly he is already a familiar figure in the tractoirs or tea cafes. They meet to bemoan his misfortune, and presto, they form themselves into a Nihilist circle.

"The circle thus formed, a regular meeting place, a private room, we will save in their favorite tractoir, is severed.

"The circle thus formed, a regular meeting place, a private room, we will say, in their favorite tractoir, is selected as the rendezvous for conspiracy,

"The Czar, in a few words, asked me to make him an expert report on it. I agreed to pass the barrier without difficulty, provided he would allow me to use two or three laborers and the ordinary tools of an electrician. He agreed. A couple of laborers were sent at once to dig out the earth from the trench in which the barrier was buried, exposing an area four or five feet square of the inclosing box, With a tenon saw I now cut out a circular section, some four feet across from the box, exposing the steel netting within. The Czar all the while stood looking on.
"From the kit of electrical tools I took some silk thread, a pair of rubber gloves, a pair of rubber-handled nippers, a coil of copper wire and a rubber mat to stand on. Putting on the gloves, I made a circular loop of the wire-leaving loose one end, which I grounded. The loop, some four feet across, I proceeded to fasten in the steel netting, observing the utmost precaution against coming in actual contact with the netting, for that meant death. Holding the copper loop up to the netting until the two almost but not quite, touched, I passed the silk thread from one to the other by the hippers, drawing the threads tighter as I progressed, until finally I had the entire copper loop secured to the barrier, making a complete circuit. "Next I stuck the loose end of the copper wire into the ground and proceeded, with the rubber-handled nippers, to cut away, with impunity, all those meshes of the network which were inside the circumference of my copper loop. The powerful electric currents were in the mean time passing harmlessly off into the ground: I had in technical terms, 'short-circuited' them. Now that the designated portion of the barrier had been cut away I walked backward and forward at will through the barrier which was to have cost £50,000.

MIGHT HAVE MADE A FORTUNE.
"The Czar smiled: and the company meeting place, a private room, we will say, in their favorite tractoir, is selected as the rendezvous for conspiracy, as well as for social enjoyment. There they sup and drink and plot and dance. The very waiters who serve them are in the secret service of the Czar; a Russian officer is the 'Czar's wholly. He may not refuse the humblest mission. Any enterprise which tends to confirm the safety or please the humor of his imperial master, it is the officer's privilege and pleasure as well as his sworn duty, to undertake.

"'Form more circles,' comes the word from the chief, the arch conspirator of all, say Troubetskoy, in Geneva, 'and then form a plot.' So they help on the formation of other circles, and at last the plans for the actual demonstration, the blow at the life of majesty itself, or some prominent general or faithful officer in the Czar's service, are ready for final arrangement.

"Now the secret police have long since been aware of what is going on, and arranging in their turn for their grand coup." There are many ways by which the formation of the new circle may have been brought to the knowledge of the police. The waiters in the tractor, as mentioned, may be spies, who report regularly to the authorities. Or one of the invited may have lost his nerve, in spite of the fearful oath he took on entrance, an oath requiring him to die rather than submit to arrest, and so endanger the safety of his brother conspirators. He may have told all to his mistress, and invited her into the circle. She, being devout, like most Russian women, goes to confession and confides to the priest that she has joined the circle, or that she loves a man who is a member of it.

"Never mind, my daughter." says the

GROSS MISMANAGEMENT.

EXTRAORDINARY MISCONDUCT OF

Innumerable Blunders in the Assessment of Property-Petitions Pouring in from Taxpayers. Consulting Engineers Selected for the Water Company Fight.

For some time past evidence has been accumulating that the present admin-istration of the City Assessor's office is the rankest and most inefficient that has ever been known in the history of Los Angeles. The grossest and most inexcusable errors in the preparation of the assessment roll are daily coming to light. The City Council has been flooded with petitions from taxpayers, asking the rectification of blunlers in the assessment of their property. Numbers of lots have beer omitted from the assessment roll alto gether, and in one instance a block of fifty-five lots was thus exempted from gether, and in one instance a block of ifity-five lots was thus exempted from taxation. Thus far the evidence may point only to gross carelessness and misteasance in the conduct of the department. The discoveries already made, however, indicate an utter lack of system and a laxity which gave abundant opportunity for corrupt practices among the Assessor's deputies. L. S. Seaman, the present City Assesor, was elected to office on December 7, 1896. One of his first acts after assuming office was to ask of the City Council, a large increase, both in the number and in the pay of his deputies. This was refused. Seaman had turned out nearly all of the experienced men who had previously served in the department, and in their piaces a horde of Democratic wardheelers and strikers were installed. With such deputies as these it is not strange that the results have been far from satisfactory. The work of the Assessor's department requires unusual care and accuracy. The deputies are expected to prepare the assessment roll, showing the actual value and the assessed value of every piece of taxable property in the city. The roll must show the value of every piece of taxable property in the city. The roll must show the value of all real estate, whether it is im-proved or vacant, and the value of improved or vacant, and the value of improvements, if any there are. Intelligence as well as exactness is essential to a proper performance of the work. There is no practical check upon the Assessor's work until the assessment roll has been turned over to the Tax Collector, and the collection of taxes has begun. Then those errors which result injuriously to the taxpayers begin to come to light. Naturally mistakes of under-valuation, causing loss enly to the city, pass for the most part undiscovered.

For weeks past petitions have been Assessor's work until the assessment rell has been turned over to the Tax Collector, and the collection of taxes has begun. Then those errors which result injurifously to the taxpayers begin to come to light. Naturally mistakes of under-valuation, causing loss only to the city, pass for the most part undiscovered.

For weeks past petitions have been permitted in the City Clerk's office, asking the Council to correct errors made by the Assessor. One of the commonest causes of complaint is that vacant property has been assessed as improved, the owner being taxed both for the value of imaginary improvements which have never existed. Over and over such islunders have been perpetrated, and 10 many of the petitions reciting them the Assessor has affixed his acknowledgment of the facts stated. It is almost a necessary inference that in many other cases, of course unreported, improved property has been assessed as vacant, thereby depriving the city of revenue to which it is justly-entitled.

so numerous and the errors disclos are so frequent that the committee h so numerous and the errors discussed are so frequent that the committee has decided to call a halt upon the payment of all claims, save those for double assessments. All others will be allowed to accumulate until some definite idea can be formed of the extent of the obligations which the Assessor has created for the city to pay.

Already the work of correcting the Assessor's blunders has entailed upon the city an expense of hundreds of dollars. Nor will the evil effects be confined to the current fiscal year. For years to come complications will arise, and in some cases litigation may result.

and in some cases litigation may result.

As yet it is impossible to estimate the full extent to which the city's revenue for the current year will be impaired. Probably the loss resulting form the mistakes that are discovered will not exceed a few thousand dollars. But it is an inevitable consequence of the Assessor's misconduct of his department that heavy loss has been sustained through the improper valuation of property. It is safe to assume that much improved property has been assessed as vacant, and that in many instances valuations have been disproportionately low.

Some errors must always occur in the preparation of the assessment roll. Double assessments, erroneous valuations and omissions of property from the roll have occurred in previous years. But never in the history of the city has the City Assessor's department been so inexcusably mismanaged as under the administration of L. S. Seaman.

The utter inefficiency of the deputies

ENGINEERS SELECTED. Preparations for the Legal Battle with the Water Company. The Finance Committee adopted yes erday a recommendation to the City Council that James D. Schuyler, Fred Eaton, A. H. Koebig and J. B. Lip-Eaton, A. H. Koebig and J. B. Lippincott be retained as consulting engineers in the city's suit against the Crystal Springs Land and Water Com-pany, and the City Water Company, which will come to trial next February. The three engineers first named are thoroughly conversant with the questions involved, having served the city in the Pomeroy-Hooker case. Mr. Lippincott is a government engineer. It was agreed by the Finance Committee that each of the engineers shall receive a retainer of $250, which shall receive a retainer of $250, which shall cover services rendered prior to the trial, and a further commensation of $25 per day for each day's attendance in court.

trial, and a further compensation of $25 per day for each day's attendance in court.

The recommendation of the Finance Committee will probably be adopted by the Council, although Hutchison has announced his intention of endeavoring to have Ernest Abs Hagen retained as one of the consulting engineers. Mr. Abs Hagen was formerly employed in the City Engineer's department, and received a vote of thanks from the Council for his work in the preparation of the report on the value of the City Water Company's plant, which was presented to the Council three months ago.

The Finance Committee also agreed to recommend to the Council that the request of the Fire Commissioners for two new fire engines be filed, as the engines can probably 'be purchased with the proceeds of the bond issue.

The committee also adopted a recommendation that the Auditor be instructed to charge the Tax Collector with $855,590.54, the amount of the tax

Judge Van Dyke Ground Out Two Decrees Yesterday-A Man Who Expected His Wife to Support

Nettie M. Folcy appeared before Judge Van Dyke yesterday in quest of a divorce from her husband, William B. Foley. The court was not long in making up its mind to issue a decree as prayed for. Mrs. Foley was, indeed, a much-abused woman, if all the charges made against her husband in the complaint be true. Not only failure to provide and intemperance were alleged, but extreme cruelty figured among the grounds upon which a separation was sought. Mrs. Foley testified that it was a favorite pastime with her husband to come home in a state of hilarious intoxication, and proceed to pound her about the face and body. Several times, she said, he had choked her almost into unconsciousness.

Nellie Moore was equally successful at the hands of Judge Van Dyke, haw; ing received a decree of divorce from her husband, Frank Moore, after only a few minutes on the stand. The Plain-tiff's mother told a most interesting story. The defendant had lived with his wife but two days when he left her. The mother-in-law hunted up the recalcitrant husband and demanded an

her. The mother-in-law hunted up the recalcitrant husband and demanded an explanation.

"Well," was the reply, "I have never been able to support myself, let alone a wife as well. When I married your daughter I depended upon ner to make a living for the family, and she 'fell down on me, 'see!"

The divorce business has grown to be an important factor in the dally affairs of the county officers. The Clerk files the complaints, there are six Judges to grant decrees, and the District Attorney invariably is approached by litigants who are seeking 'dvice. Even the Sheriff comes in during the preliminary stages, and those who desthe information as to the mode of procedure in this line never overlook the registration clerk on the ground floor, where marriage licenses are issued.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Holton received a letter yesterday from a lady residing outside the city, in which inquiry was made as to whether it was necessary for one to have been divorced more than a year in order to apply for a marriage license. The corvorced more than a year in order to apply for a marriage license. The cor-respondent wanted to know if a person divorced prior to the passage of the one-year law passed in January last was amenable to that statute, offering the opinion that the law should apply only to these abstracts of the control of the contr only to those obtaining a divorce sub-sequent to the date the law went into effect. Mr. Holton replied to his fair but inquisitive correspondent briefly,

SENATOR PERKINS.

PAVORS A SOUTHERN SELECTION FOR THE U.S. SENATORSHIP.

His Province to Decide Between Subernatorial Aspirants - The Known Its Desires.

[Oakland Enquirer:] The Call of onday intimated that if Senator Perkins would express his choice, he would settle the contest now being waged between Alameda's candidates waged between Alameda's candidates for the gubernatorial nomination. While it was understood that Senator Perkins was taking no part in this contest, yet for the purpose of definitely ascertaining his views, an Enquirer reporter called upon the gentleman. The Senator stated that he had read the article in question with considerable surprise, for he presumed that his attitude of neutrality, and the reasons leading up to it, were well known. "It would be indelicate for me to intefere in such a matter," said he. "Both candidates are honorable men, both are my friends. The decision must and should be left to the Republican party of Alameda county.

didates are honorable men, both are my friends. The decision must and should be left to the Republican party of Alameda county.

"The next campaign will be one of great importance to the party," continued he, "and the Republicans should present a united and harmonious front. There should be as little clashing as possible. Then there is the Senatorial question. It will grow in importance every day, and should be gravely considered.

"I have heard it authoritatively stated that the people of the southern portion of the State desire a United States Senator above all other political recognition. If this be true, they should under all circumstances have it, and the gubernatorial nomination will then be likely to come north.

"You see," the Senator went on to say, "the fact that the outgoing Senator comes from Los Angeles arid the additional fact that so far no one has come out prominently from the north, will materially strengthen the claim of the people down there, if they but make their wishes definitely known.

"You understand, of course, it would be in bad taste at this time, in view of the fact that the State convention will not meet for about ten months, to advocate the cause of any particular candidate. Many excellent names have been mentioned for the place, but I do not care to discuss the individuals. I believe the south, if it has not already done so, should settle the abstract question of Governor or Senator as soon as possible, so that the friends of harmony living north of Tehachepi may not be led through ignorance into antagonizing the party in the south.

"I am willing to trust to the people to settle these matters. I believe a majority of them belong to the Republican party; if they do not they should reform and unite with us for the Republican party; if they do not they should reform and unite with us for the Republican party; if they do not they should reform and unite with us for the Republican party; if they do not they should reform and unite with us for the Republican party; if they do not they

They did not stop, but Auble ran them down with his bicycle and made wisoners of both of them.

ing. His version of the affair is as follows:

He was in pursuit of two young fellows who stole flowers from the premises of Mrs. Clark at Monmouth and Adams streets. They were afoot and he was on his bleyde. He chased them several blocks and commanded them to halt, but they paid no heed to the command. Then he fired twice into the air, pointing the revolver directly upward so as to make sure that no one would be hurt. A worpan, standing at the corner of Hoover and Adams streets waiting for a car was badly frightened by the shooting, and alleged that one of the bullets struck an electric post just above her head. Auble said that was impossible, as he had not pointed his weapon in that direction. After he aught the culprits he took his bicycle amp and made a careful examination of the post; but no bullet hole could be lound.

He took his prisoners back to Mrs them severely, asked the Conot wish to prosecute them. The boys said they wanted the flowers for their sick mother.

The officer declares that there is no ruth whatever in the assertion that he rearly shot Mrs. Jones or any one else.

SAVE YOUR STOMACH.

The habit of drugging is so general, it has been so much of a custom during the past generation that some people would not think of attempting to cure disease by any other means than by pouring something down the throat. They keep on drugging because custom forms a habit, and they take their regular dose before going to bed just the same as if the drug was one of the essentials to living. It is not. It is simply a vicious habit. Nature is being laughed at in contempt. All the laws of health are scorned. The stomach is being ruined. The drug fiend always fills an early grave. He destroys the only foundation to what little vitality he has left—his stomach. When you swallow a drug, think of this: Disease is the result of inability of some organ of your body to do the work nature intended it to do. Inability means impotency, weakness, lack of strength. What is strength? Not in drugs! It is vitality, animal magnetism—Electricity.

IT IS A STORY THAT IS OFTEN TOLD.

Dr. Sanden's office is the scene of many happy greetings from grateful people who have been cured of complaints over which drugs have no permanent effect. People who had given up all hope of being cured, and who had tried Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt as a last resort, without faith in it, are loudest in its praise. Those who have suffered the pangs of rheumatism, of lumbago and sciatica; those whose stomach, liver and kidneys refused to do their work; those whose nervous systems were wrecked by excesses of dissipations, and who were exhausted in the vigor of manhood or womanhood, they are now praising Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt for the good it has done.
